PREFACE

SOME nine years ago the author became thoroughly impressed with the importance of genealogical work, and at once began her investigation of family history, although with no thought of publishing the results. Being a woman, and married, she was not specially interested in the matter of lineal descent, but struck out in all directions, and was soon engaged in tracing her lineage in some twenty different lines. One of these lines led back to William Strobridge, the history and genealogy of whose descendants form the principal portion of this work.

At the end of three months from the time of beginning her investigation of Strobridge history, her collections filled forty pages, foolscap, and it was then believed that about all that related to the Family had been obtained.

Just then the author's attention was called to a different ancestral line, and it was several years before she was able to resume her Strobridge investigations. In the mean time material relating to this Family had accumulated, and when she was finally at liberty to examine and arrange it, there was found to be enough new matter to swell the original forty pages of manuscript to one hundred and fifty, and while considering the question of depositing the document with some genealogical society for safe keeping, a fresh invoice of important records arrived.

By this time it had begun to seem imperative that such a collection of valuable information should be placed beyond danger of destruction through any accident, for it was clear that its loss could never be replaced. It was, therefore, decided an attempt should be made to get it into print, with what result the present volume shows.

The author has never laid any claim to the possession of literary ability, nor has she ever desired to see her name in print. Believing that thoroughness and accuracy are of more account in a genealogical work than literary finish, and that her book will be found to possess these essentials, she trusts that faults of style will be overlooked.

That she has never been influenced by the hope of a pecuniary return for her labors hardly needs to be said. Her one hope has been that she might obtain orders enough to meet the expense of publishing, and so far it has not been realized. The work is a much larger one than was at first planned for, which will, of course, increase the cost of publishing proportionably; but having put her hand to the plow, she does not intend to turn back.

To all who have in any way assisted in the work she is sincerely grateful. She would particularly mention as having given valuable service: MRS. JANE G. (DEAN) JACKSON, Taunton, Mass.; MRS. ANNA S. WASHBURN, Middleborough, Mass.; MISS MARY B. PAUL, Windsor, Vt.; MISS LYDIA S. STROBRIDGE, Peacham, Vt.; MRS. SUSAN C. BATES, Whitman, Mass.; MRS. MARILLA WHEELER, Portville, N. Y.; MRS. CORA H. McLALLEN, Trumansburg, N. Y.; MRS. ELIZABETH S. DAVIS, Penn Yan, N. Y.; CAPT. GEORGE A. KING, and FRANK L. TINKHAM, Esq., Taunton, Mass.; and many others, quite too numerous to name.

That her book may afford both satisfaction and profit to those for whom it was prepared is the sincere wish of

THE AUTHOR.

LYNN, MASS., July, 1891.

INTRODUCTION

THE author hopes that no one interested in any one of the three Families traced in this work will fail to read the extracts here given from the eloquent address of Rev. J. S. McIntosh, D. D., at the second annual session of the Scotch-Irish congress at Pittsburgh, Pa., May, 1890, for all members of these three Families may almost surely know that at some time or other, ancestors of their own were among the inhabitants of Ulster, in the North of Ireland. Doctor McIntosh said:

“For some years I have been working over the tales, the worship, the folk-lore, dress, the habits, the works of home, and religion and common life, the described features, and the still surviving forms and faces and hue of eyes and hair to be found of old, and to this day, in the Strathclyde, and on both sides of the Borders, and I hold it to be beyond a fair question that by none of the invasions of these parts, not even the Danish and the Norman, were the old Britons of the Arthur myths and sagas either destroyed or driven out. That rich and worthy old race formed the stock; into it were grafted the young, the fresh, and, in many respects, nobler branches, and the new shoots and later fruits are the Lowlanders of Scotland. Here is where the Celtic blood comes into our veins, and not from a later hour, and from Ireland. For the largest enrichment ever brought by the Celt we must thank the Briton of Arthur, and not the clansmen of the O’Neil.

“This Lowland race, Briton and Norman, Saxon and Dane, gave the world a new man—the Border soldier, the pioneer, the sea-rover, the inventor, the statesman, the revolutionary, the singer in Robert Burns, and the romancer in Walter Scott. And nothing in the witching tale of folk-building and folk-breeding do I know more wonderful than God's long toil in making the Lowland people. As Skene shows (vol. iii, p. 15), at the time of Alexander III the population of Scotland was composed of six chief races: Picts, Britons, Scots, Angles, Norsemen (including Danes and Norwegians), and the Franco-Normans, 'forming a people of very mixed descent, in which the Teutonic element was more and more predominating.' In the Lowlands, 'the native base of the Brito-Scoto-Anglo-Norman people was the Romano-Briton.' Freeman, in his 'History of the Norman Conquest,' and in his story of 'The English People in their Three Homes,' shows us 'that we adopted, assimilated, absorbed alike the conquerors and the conquered into the very essence of our national being.'

"But through and through the old Briton survived till the final fusion, so all important to us (their Scotch-Irish descendants), in the one rich-blooded Lowland folk. To that rare blood the scholarly Scot from Dalriada, the pliant, large-limbed Pict, the poetic Celt, the shrewd, acquisitive Anglo-Saxon, the patient Frisian, the daring Dane, the breezy Jute, the organizing, systematic, feudal Norman, brought each his contribution. . . .

"The plantation of the Scot into Ulster kept for the world the essential and the best features of the Lowlander.

"Now into the right or the wrong of England's way of settling war-wasted Ulster by planting groups of colonists,* I will not enter; here, I will take the simple historic fact—thus 't was done.

"One of the greatest facts in history is the plantation of Ulster; the 16th of April, 1605, should be for us all memorable, by all historic, ancestral, and constitutional rights, for that 16th day of April was, as all the state papers show, 'The Day of the Great Charter.'

"On that day was given forth by the English court that charter under which the 'Undertakers' were authorized to start a movement, the end of which the world sees not yet. But it is a bright and sunny day of middle May which is in many respects the still greater day; for on that Mayday was the landing of the Lowlanders to restore Ulster, and largely remake history. We journey to Plymouth Rock to tell of the landing of the Puritans, and none too often or too fondly; but let us not forget that the Ulsterman has his day, and that America has a right to know and keep the day of the Ulster landing. By that landing the seat of a new empire has been found, for imperial by all proof was that race that came to Ulster to change it from savage wilds to smiling fields and busy towns. . . .

* This refers to the subjugation by the English government of the rebellious Catholics of Ireland, and the confiscation of their estates.

"The two cities of Ulster, Belfast and Derry, are the evidences of the transplanted Scot; Belfast is self-made, Derry is self-kept. . . . In the calendar of state papers for Ireland, 1615-1625, we have among many other clear statements, the official report of Captain Pynnar, who, sent by the government to inspect the Ulster settlers, tells in plain, honest words exactly what he then found.

"We have further the accounts in the register of the Priory Council of Scotland of the great care taken in the selection of the 'undertakers.' We know that King James, than whom, when he chose, there was no more canny Scot to be found, gave his own personal oversight to the plantation. We know that the Duke of Lenox, under the royal eyes, drew from Dumbar-tonshire, that the Earl of Abercorn, from Renfrewshire, that Hamilton, Montgomery, and Boyd from Ayrshire, and that from Gallowayshire and Dunfrieshire, Crawford, Cunningham, Ochiltree, and MacLellan carefully selected colonists for the new venture.

"In one of the letters of Sir Arthur Chichester, Deputy of Ireland, we read as follows: 'The Lord Ucheltrie arrived in Ireland at the time of our being in Armagh, accompanied with thirty-three followers, gentlemen of sort, a minister, some tenants, free-holders, and artificers.' In another communication to government the keen-eyed deputy says: 'The Scottish men come with better port (i. e. manifest character); they are better accompanied and attended (than even the English settlers).’ Just as to these western shores came the stronger souls, the more daring and select, so to Ulster, from the best parts of lower Scotland came the picked men to be Britain’s favored colonists.

“The Ulsterman was a stranger among strangers. . . . He was an alien to the alien Celt. Who, what, whence the resistless Scots of Dalriada coming so early unto the Strathclyde, no ethnologist has yet shown; but we know enough to affirm that they were not of the South-Irish Celts. The indubitable strain of Celtic blood in the Ulstermen of the Plantation was brought to, not taken from, Ireland. This fact that the Ulster colonist was a stranger and a favorite, for the time, of England and her government, wrought in a two-fold way, in the Ulsterman and against him. . . . The fact that he was the royal colonist wrought in him the pride, the contempt, the hauteur, and swaggering daring of a victorious race planted among despised savages. . . . And the rulers of that hour both cultivated that feeling and enforced it. The Celt of that day had nothing to make him winsome or worthy of imitation. Romance and sentiment may as well be dropped. We have the hard facts about the clansmen of the O’Neil. The glory and the honor were with England.” . . .

Doctor McIntosh presents the following historical picture: “We are in the old Down-lands, fair lands of the circling sea, and rolling hills, and silvery streams, and right before us are hoary ruins. It is the Grey Abbey. It is a genial day of early July, 1605, and four men and three women drink from the well. They are worth more than the swift glance we can give, for they are the fathers and mothers of history. There is Con O’Neale, wild, wicked, funny Con MacNeale, MacBryan Feartagh O’Neal — and round him gathers the very richest romance — that wild dash on the English garrison in the clachan at the Laganford, now known as Belfast; that all adroit whisking off from the sleeping soldiers of every wine butt; the arrest of the raider and his imprisonment in Carrick castle; the arts and wiles of the jailer’s daughter under the tutelage of Tom Montgomery; the flight to London; the amusing meeting with royal Jamie. Beside Con stands his friend in need, the bluff half-smuggler, Captain Tom Montgomery, who made love to the jailer's daughter, Annie Dobbin, and carried off Con, and Annie as his own wife. Beside Tom, rests on his strong staff Hugh Montgomery, of the noble house of Eglinton, that soldier of fiery soul but of rarest forethought, whom Prince Maurice of Orange had trusted as a very right arm.* And the fourth man is the ancestor of the great Dufferin, he is one James Hamilton, the brainiest of them all, who came from a Scotch manse, and from the side of a great-souled Presbyterian minister, to be one of the world-makers in his deep stamping of Ulster life and Ulster men.

"And their wives, yes, they, too, are worthy. That jolly, mischievous Annie Dobbin, without whom there would have been no freed Con O'Neal in London, making compact before King James, with both Montgomery and Hamilton for the earliest settlement of Down. With her is Mistress Hamilton, that gentle mother to her loved folks. And noblest, perhaps, of the three, is the mother of Ulster industry, the 'clever and capable' Lady Montgomery, who built the water-mills to do away with the 'quairn stanes'; who overlooked her own model farms; who encouraged the growing of flax and potatoes; who went around teaching spinning and weaving, both of flax and wool; who began the weaving of the Ulster 'breakin' (a sort of homespun shepherd plaid), and who lent money to the struggling till they were able to stand alone—let her live forever—the mother of Ulster manufacture.'"† . . .

After a time there came to Ulster to join the Lowlanders two other sets of colonists; these were the Puritans and the Huguenots. "While along the shores of Down and Antrim, and by the banks of the Six Mile Water and the Main, the colonists were almost wholly from the Lowlands of Scotland, upon the shores of Derry and Donegal, and by the banks of the Foyle and

* The author believes that her ancestress, Sarah (Montgomery) Strobridge, was of the lineage of this same Hugh of Eglinton.

† This grand woman was in all probability the ancestress of a very large proportion of the persons mentioned in this work.

the Bann, were planted by the action of the same far-seeing James Stuart bands of English colonists.

*“Large grants of lands in the escheated counties of Ulster were bestowed upon the great London companies, and on their vast estates by the Foyle and Bann were settled considerable numbers of fine old English families.

“The Englishman may be easily traced to this very day in Derry, Coleraine, Armagh, and Enniskillen. Groups of these Puritans dotted the whole expanse of Ulster, and in a later hour, when the magnificent Cromwell took hold of Ireland, these English colonists were reinforced by not a few of the bravest and strongest of the Ironsides. . . . Among these English settlers were not a few who were ardent followers of George Fox, that man who was in many respects Cromwell’s equal, and in some his master. These Friends came with a man of great force of character, Thomas Edmundson. . . . The Friends came to Antrim in 1652, and settled in Antrim and Down, and hence come the Pims, the Barclays, Grubs, Richardsons, and many another goodly name of Ulster.”

By the second decade of the seventeenth century, “the fame of this Irish province as a ‘shelter of the hunted’ was spreading over Europe, and soon the Puritan and Quaker were joined in Ulster by another noble man of God’s making—the Huguenot from France. Headed by Louis Cromelin, they came a little later and settled in and around Lisburn, founding many of the finest industries of Ulster, and giving mighty impulse to those already started, and still later, following the ‘immortal William,’ came some brave burghers from the Holland and the Netherlands. Thus Ulster became a gathering ground for the very finest, most formative, impulsive, and aggressive of the free, enlightened, God-fearing peoples of Europe. . . .

“It has been said that the Ulster settlers mingled and married with the Irish Celt. They did not mingle with the Celt. I speak, remember, chiefly of the period running from 1605 to

* The italics are the author’s, for she wishes to call particular attention to these two paragraphs, since it is among these English colonists that we have to look for the ancestors of the Strobridges, and of most of the Strawbridges of this work.

1741. There had been in Ireland before the 'plantation' some wild islanders from the west of Scotland, whose descendants I have found in the Antrim 'Glynnes.' They did marry and intermarry with the natives, but King James expressly forbade any more of these islandmen being taken to Ulster, and he and his government took measures that the later settlers of the 'plantation,' should be taken 'from the inward parts of Scotland,' and that they should be so settled that they 'may not mix nor intermarry with the mere Irish. The Ulster settlers mingled freely with the English Puritans and with the refugee Huguenots, but so far as my search of state papers, old manuscripts, examination of old parish registers, and years of personal talk with and study of Ulster folk, the Scotch did not mingle to any appreciable extent with the natives.*

"Under the influences of the Puritan, Huguenot, and Hollander, the Ulsterman grew a busy trader, a man of business, a man of commerce. Ulster became a very hive of busy industries and activities. The coast traffic with Scotland increased weekly; large trade sprang up with Scotland, and soon the Ulster products and Ulster merchants and shippers were known in the ports of France and Holland. . . .

"But the sky began to darken. . . . There had been known in Ulster what has been called beautifully, and with a sad, lingering regret, 'The Golden, Peaceable Age.' It was the age of Usher and Echlin as bishops, and Chichester as deputy.

"From 1633, when Wentworth opened his star chamber of despots, and his high commission courts of persecuting prelates, till 1704, when the sacramental test grew unbearable, Ulster was distracted by English tyrants and Laudian prelates. Cavalier and churchman sowed the wind, and at Marston and Yorktown they reaped the whirlwind.

"The wrongs of the once contented colonist were five-fold.

* There seems to have been great confusion in the minds of the historians of Pennsylvania in regards to the early Scotch-Irish of that State, for we find them speaking of "Scotch," "Scotch-Irish," and "Irish" as though they were people of three sorts, when in all probability most, if not all of them, were either Scotch, or Scotch-English from Ulster. There should be a new history of Pennsylvania written, setting this important matter straight.

He was wronged by the State, the church, in his home, his trade, and in his very grave.

“By the state. . . . From 1633 to 1714 you have nothing but promises and falsifications; the promise made when England was afraid, or her plotting parties had something to gain; the falsification, with scoffing laugh and galling sneer, when the fright was gone and the greed glutted. No wonder the exasperated emigrant said at Carlisle, ‘I believe England least when she swears deepest.’ He was the son of a Derry Presbyterian, and he knew how England rewarded her saviors.

“By the church,—working with Wentworth in the State was Laud in the church. . . . The Jacobite bishops of distracted Ulster divided their time pretty equally between cowardly policy against Whig rule and the pitiless robbing of the Non-Conformists of all religious freedom. No one has put this into plainer nor more honest words than my friend, the Rev. Dr. McConnell, the eloquent rector of St. Stephen’s, Philadelphia, who at our banquet said: ‘In the early years of the last century were living here Scotch Presbyterians, whose ears had been cut off by Kirk’s lambs, whose fathers had been hanged before their eyes, who had worn the boots and thumbkins while Leslies stood by and jeered; who had been hunted from their burning homes by that polished gentleman and staunch Episcopalian, Graham, Earl of Claverhouse; who had been brow-beaten by Irish bishops, and denied even the sympathy of the gentle Jeremy Taylor; who had been driven from their livings, fined, imprisoned, their ministerial office derided, the children of the marriages they had celebrated pronounced bastards.’

“He was wronged in his home by church and state together. Landlords and bishops made common cause to spoil the Ulster yeomanry. As the thrifty and toiling farmer improved his land he was taxed on his invested capital by the ever-swelling rent, until he was rack-rented, and then, if he would not pay the legalized robbery, he was mercilessly evicted. His father and he had made a waste a garden, while the proprietor idled; then by law the idler claimed the fruits of hard toil; the English law wrung ‘the pound of flesh’ forth, and suffered no Portia to plead for the defrauded. Added to these agrarian wrongs were the denial of education, the shutting of schools, the barring of colleges by sacramental tests, and the legalized filching of great endowments for common education. The right of free and independent voting was refused, and a gag-law of the worst kind was maintained. The baptism of his children was made a laughing stock, and legality of marriage by non-Episcopal clergy officially denied. . . .

“He was wronged in his trade. . . . One reads with wonder of the rapid growth of Ulster industries and trade inside some thirty years, but the admiration changes to hot anger as you see the young life strangled by selfish and jealous interference on the part of English traders and statesmen. The letters of Lord Fitzwilliam, and ‘Dobbs’ History of Irish Trade’ tell one of the saddest tales. Act after act was passed forbidding the exportation of wool, horses, cattle, butter, and cheese, and dead meats. Ireland was excluded from the Navigation Act, shipping was ruined, and business failed.

“As if all these wrongs in life were not enough to heap on a man singularly high-minded, brave, loving right and hating a lie, he was wronged of a grave. For him no sacred ‘God’s Acre,’ if his own beloved minister was to read simple words of Holy Writ and utter from the heart the spirit-born, free prayer. . . .

“And the Ulsterman who endured all this shame and wrong and open robbery, was the very man who had made and who kept the land. . . . When he came it was a war-wasted desert, when he was driven to our shores from it he left behind him homesteads and fertile fields. He had kept it, and Derry is the proof; Derry, whose salvation belongs not to Walker, but to the Rev. James Gordon and his Presbyterian ‘boys’; for Gordon led to the closing of the gates, and Gordon led to the breaking of ‘the boom,’ and the relief of the garrison. Yet after that very siege and defense, the men and party that were the real saviors of the country and keepers of the gates, were wronged and wronged until their hearts blazed with justest anger against an ingrate crew of English liars and tricksters. . . .

“When his righteous anger was, in the opening years of the eighteenth century, at its whitest heat, Holland began to tell on him; but more movingly still the stirring American colonies.”

Some authority quoted by Rev. Dr. D. C. Kelley, at the Scotch-Irish congress in 1889, says that “during the first half of the eighteenth century, Down, Antrim, Tyrone, Armagh, and Derry were emptied of Protestant inhabitants who were of more value to Ireland than California gold mines.” And Froude states that in two years which followed the Antrim evictions thirty thousand Protestants left Ulster for a land where there was no legal robbery, and where those who sowed the seed could reap the harvest.”

The emigration continued with more or less fluctuation until 1774.

Doctor Baird, in his “History of Religion in America,” states that “from 1729 to 1750, about twelve thousand annually came from Ulster to America.” “These emigrants landed at the ports of Boston, Philadelphia, and Charleston. Comparatively few entered the country by way of New England. Those that did so, settled mainly in New Hampshire,* while others found their way to Pennsylvania,† and helped swell the tide which was pouring into this State by way of Philadelphia. These Irish settlers occupied the eastern and middle counties bordering on the wilderness still occupied by the Indians. Such as landed at Charleston located themselves on the fertile lands of North and South Carolina and Georgia.

* Doctor Kelley probably overstates this matter, for those emigrants who remained in and near Boston must have at least equalled in numbers the New Hampshire settlers, and there were besides these many families who found homes in Bridgewater and Middleborough, Mass., and many others who settled in various towns in western Massachusetts. Not a few went to Maine, and quite a contingent—enough to have a church and pastor of their own (Rev. Mr. Dorrance, at Voluntown)—settled in Windham co., Conn., and the town of Scotland, in that county, still retains the name given by and for these people.

† In 1749 William Douglass published (in Boston), his “Summary,” in which he says (p. 68), “Lately the long Leases of the Farmers in the North of Ireland being expired, the Landlords raised their Rents extravagantly. This occasioned an Emigration of many North of Ireland Scots Presbyterians, with an Intermixture of wild Irish Roman Catholics; At first they chose¹ New England, but being brought up to Husbandry, or raising of Grain, called Bread Corn, New England did not answer so well as the Colonies Southward; therefore at present they generally resort to Pennsylvania, a good Grain Colony.”

"The settlers in Pennsylvania afterward turned southward through the valley of Virginia, till 'meeting those extending northward from the Carolinas, the emigration passed westward to the country called then beyond the mountains, now known as Kentucky and Tennessee.' At a later period western Pennsylvania was occupied by the descendants of the settlers of the middle counties of the State, with Pittsburgh as a center. From these points of radiation the Scotch-Irish have extended to all parts of the country, and, being an intelligent, resolute, and energetic people, have left their name and mark in every state of the Union." — (Rev. D. C. Kelley, D. D., at Pittsburgh, Pa., May, 1889.)

Neither in New England or elsewhere were the Scotch-Irish welcomed. Drake says, in his "Antiquities of Boston," "Although they were a good acquisition to this place, being industrious and orderly, and in time introduced several valuable arts and improvements* among the people, yet they at first met with a cold reception, being viewed as inferiors and intruders."

Hon. L. A. Morrison, in the "History of Windham, N. H.," says, referring to those who went to Worcester, Mass.: "The antipathy of the people was ferocious against them. They formed a church, and Edward Fitzgerald was their first pastor. They, like all their countrymen, were a hardy, thrifty people, but their English Congregationalist neighbors were ignorant of them and their form of worship. They became jealous, and from the fact that they came from Ireland, called them Irish, and commenced a strong persecution of them. When, in 1736 or 1740, the frame of their meeting-house was erected, the Congregationalists rallied and tore it down. . . . They were not permitted to build a house of worship, and soon after 1740 dispersed, some to Otsego co., N. Y.; some to Coleraine, Palmer, and Pelham, Mass. Probably no people who ever landed in America have been so much misunderstood and so much mis-

* They introduced flax spinning, and it is claimed that the linen wheel was the invention of one of their number, Archibald Thompson of Bridgewater (North Parish), Mass., ancestor of two branches of the Strowbridge family. It is also said that the cultivation of the potato in this country was introduced by the Scotch-Irish.

represented as the Scotch settlers of Windham and Londonderry, N. H., and other places settled in different parts of the country by this same hardy, unconquerable race. The ignorance and stupidity of other classes in relation to them and their history has been unbounded. They were called Irish when not a drop of Irish blood flowed in their veins; they were called Roman Catholics when they hated that sect almost to ferocity, — when they had rolled back the papal forces, and had endured the horrors of starvation, shed their blood in mountain fastnesses and on many battle fields, to uphold the Protestant faith, and had ventured their all for the British crown against the Irish Papists.”

In Pennsylvania, of which State they formed a large proportion of the early settlers, the Scotch-Irish encountered the greatest opposition and injustice.

In 1856 George Chambers, himself of Scotch-Irish ancestry, published his “Tribute to the Principles, Virtues, Habits, and Public Usefulness of the Irish and Scotch Early Settlers of Pennsylvania.” He says, “Justice has not been done to the Scotch and Irish race in the histories of American colonies and states. . . . Some compilers of local history in Pennsylvania have accorded to the Scotch and Irish early settlers religious and moral character of a high standard, as well as great public service and usefulness, whilst the authors of some historical collections and memoirs have indulged in wholesale accusations to their reproach. . . . From the acquaintance of the writer with the character of the Irish and Scotch early settlers who were the early actors in the settlement of the province of Pennsylvania, he affirms that the accusations and reproaches thus imputed to the Scotch-Irish race in Pennsylvania are unfounded and unjust. . . .

“Individuals of the race have done wrongs against society and their brethren, but not to a greater degree than were perpetrated elsewhere in civilized communities of the same number in like circumstances. The offenses of a few infatuated, vicious, or turbulent men, under a feeble government, are not to be imputed as a lasting stigma and reproach to all. . . .

“Were their evil deeds so many and great that the mantle of charity can neither conceal nor cover them? If so, where is the evidence of them? They were men who laid broad and deep the foundations of a great province. . . . They were more than ordinary men to hold the plow and handle the axe or ply the shuttle. They had other qualities we would infer from their works, their enterprise, energy, bravery, and patriotism, and they were not surpassed for lofty virtue and consistent piety. . . . They were generally of steady habits, of religious and moral character. . . .

“Simultaneous with the organization of congregations by these settlers, was the establishment of school-houses in every neighborhood. . . . The descendants of the Irish and Scotch, in whatever district they may have cast their lot and fixed their stakes, are amongst the most prominent, virtuous, active and useful, industrious and enterprising of the community. . . .

“Though Pennsylvania has not elevated one of her own sons to the presidency of the United States, yet the Scotch-Irish race of the Union has furnished three of our presidents,* and a majority of the United States senators since the organization of the federal government. They have, also, from their ranks in Pennsylvania, given to our commonwealth five of her governors, and a majority of the men who have composed and still compose the supreme and other courts of the State. . . . In all stations under the national or state governments, civil or military, the men of this race have generally been prominent, eminent, patriotic and faithful, wise, judicious and deliberate in council, resolute, unwavering and inflexible in the discharge of duty, and when called by their country to face the public enemy in arms, there were none more brave, fearless, and intrepid.”

In a recent magazine article by Henry Cabot Lodge, entitled “The Distribution of Ability in the United States,” a most remarkable showing in favor of the Scotch-Irish race is made.

* It is now claimed that Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Lincoln, Grant, and Harrison have all belonged to the Scotch-Irish race.

Of course the English race stands first in nearly everything, but in the eighteen specified professions, callings, and occupations, the Scotch-Irish come next to the English in all excepting two.

The history of the race in America has never yet been written. When it shall have been, no member of that race will have cause to be ashamed of the connection.

ARRANGEMENT.

The arrangement followed in this work is nearly identical with that used in the "Dows or Dowse Genealogy," from which some hints were taken. The plan is very simple and needs no explanation. It also possesses the merit of being impartial, the female members of families receiving the same consideration as the male members.

ARMS.

An illustration of the Trowbridge Coat of Arms is given in this volume because it was thought that it would prove of interest to many readers. From the descriptions of the Trowbridge, Trowbridge, and Strobridge arms, on page 3 of this work, it is evident that the three families owning them were of the same stock. The illuminated sketch, from which the illustration was made, was presented to the author, and since no representation of the Strobridge arms was obtainable, it was decided that with an explanation, the Trowbridge illustration might be admitted into the book. Of course it is impossible, with our meagre knowledge, to tell whether there was any direct connection between the titled Strobridges of Devonshire, England, and those of the name who settled in this country over one hundred and fifty years ago, although the chances are that there was not.

— From Selectmen's Minutes, 1719 to 1720, p. 63, Boston Record Commissioner's Report.

JOHN STROBRIDGE, of the foregoing list, was undoubtedly the same one who was married to Elizabeth Andrews, at Dorchester, Mass., Mch. 28, 1721-2, by Rev. Joseph Morse, and had son Samuel, b. May, 1723. (See 21st Report Boston Record Commissioners, pp. 72, 109.) The above John may have been brother to the following :

WILLIAM, JAMES, and THOMAS STROBRIDGE, brothers, came to Middleborough, Mass., exact date of arrival not known.

THOMAS STROBRIDGE, brother of William, d. Aug. 6, 1724, æ. 25; is buried at Thompson Hill cemetery, Lakeville, Mass.

JAMES "STRAWBRIDGE," brother of William, bought of William a lot of land in Middleborough, Mass., containing 18 1-4 acres; date of deed* Mch. 5, 1738-9; paid £40.

JAMES "STROWBRIDGE," brother of William, d. Feb. 7, 1773, æ. 79; buried at Thompson Hill cemetery, Lakeville, Mass. Neither Thomas nor James is known to have left any descendants, and both were probably unmarried.

ACCORDING to family tradition, WILLIAM STROBRIDGE¹, ancestor of the family whose genealogy will be found in the following pages, was b. about 1690, in some place near Londonderry, in the north of Ireland; m. MARGARET HENRY in 1716; had dau. Mary, b. in Ireland; came with wife and child to America between 1718 and 1722 (probably about 1719). He was a blacksmith, lived in Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), Mass., where he d. Nov. 14, 1777, æ. 87. His wife d. Dec. 8, 1776, æ. 83.

From her earliest remembrance the author has been accustomed to hear that her Strobridge ancestors were "Scotch-Irish"—that is, persons of Scotch blood born in, or residents of, Ireland, and not until within a very short time has she supposed there could be any doubt about it, but of late the question whether she is justified in claiming a Scotch origin for those ancestors has arisen, and she is forced to admit that the objects have all the evidence there is in their favor.

She has long known of the Trowbridge or Strobridge or Strawbridge family of Devonshire, Eng.; but, supposing it to be a branch of an older one, to which the Scotch family also belonged, made no attempt to connect with it. Such investigations of the matter as she has been able to make, however, reveal no information concerning a Scotch branch, and the probability now seems to be that the early ancestors of William Strobridge, and of the various Strawbridges who are known to have come to America from Ireland, went to Ireland from England.

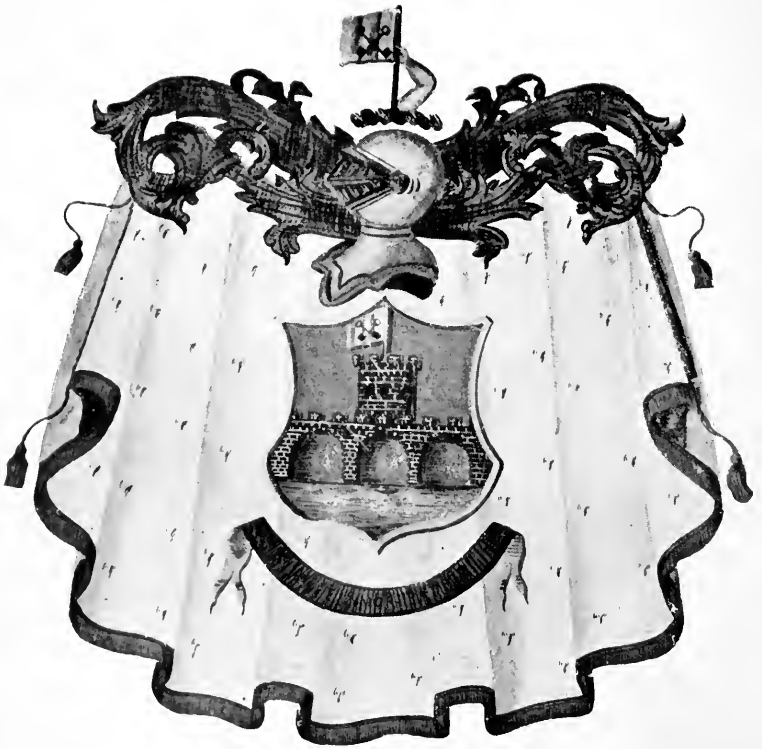

Having arrived at this conclusion, it may be well to give in this connection all that the author has learned of the Devonshire family.

Trowbridge, who came from Taunton, Somersetshire, Eng., to Dorchester, Mass., in 1636," we take the following:

"The very ancient family of Trowbridge derives its name from its ancient inheritance Trowbridge, in the Parish of Crediton, in Devonshire, where it resided for many centuries, and which was the property of Peter de Trowbridge in the reign of Edward I. This barton was sold by the Trowbridge family about the year 1720 to Samuel Strode, Esq., whose son conveyed it to Giles Yard, Esq. It now (1853) belongs to Miss Eliz. Yard, one of his daughters and co-heiresses. Trowbridge House is occupied by her uncle, John Yard, Esq."

Also this: "The name in the earlier records is variously spelled thus: Trobridge, Troubridge, Trowbridge, Throwbridge, Trobblebridge, Strobridge, and Strawbridge. The mode of spelling now generally adopted is Trowbridge," from which latter remark it is to be inferred that the names Strobridge and Strawbridge are not now common in England.

[The author is acquainted with a lady who is a native of Ashburton, County Devonshire, Eng., who was there a pupil in a school kept by one Thomas Strawbridge, about 1850. The gentleman had a brother whose name was William, but the lady knows nothing of the history or connection of the brothers. The circumstance proves that the name was not extinct in Devonshire in 1850.]

From "Burke's General Armory" we copy the following, which were taken from the "Herald's Visitation of Devonshire in 1620":

"Trowbridge, Co. Devon. John Trobridge, Esq., of Trobridge (visit. Devon, 1620), son of Robert Trobridge, grandson of Richard Trobridge, and great-grandson of Thomas Trobridge, all of same place."

"Or over water ppr. a bridle towered gu."

"Strobridge (Modbury, Bigbury, and Colleton, Co. Devon). (John Strobridge, aged 30, at visit. Devon, 1620, son and heir apparent of Arthur Strobridge of Modbury, grandson of John Strobridge of Bigbury, and great-grandson of John Strobridge of Colleton.)"

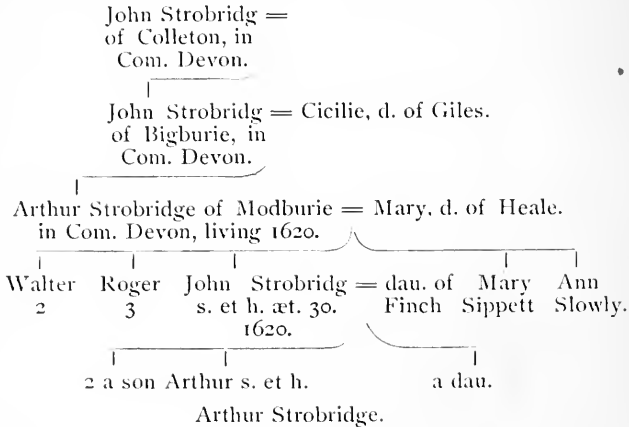

"Or over water ppr on a bridge of 3 arches gu a tower of the last and pennon hoisted thereon."

The following pedigree was received by Mr. W. C. Strobridge of Stamford, Conn., from Rev. Mr. Huntington, author of the history of Stamford, who obtained it (probably) during his investigations in England:

STROBRIDGE PEDIGREE, TAKEN FROM THE VISITATION OF DEVONSHIRE
IN THE YEAR 1620.

STROBRIDGE.

ARMS. Or over water proper on a bridge of three arches gules a tower of the last and a pennon hoisted thereon.

To some it may seem a waste of words to say that William Strobridge could not have been a descendant of Thomas Trowbridge, the ancestor of the American Trowbridges, but we fear that some members of this family have been counting on the establishment of the connection. Trowbridge may have been the original name, but John Strobridge, of Colleton, Devonshire, could not have been born later than 1524, which must have been towards a century earlier than the time of Thomas Trowbridge, the emigrant. We may be sure, then, that the name Strobridge is at least 367 years old.

In the Introduction will be found some mention of the founding of English colonies in Ireland by the side of Scotch colonists, and here we must look for the explanation of the application of the term Scotch-Irish to people of English origin.

It is the author's firm conviction that the persons who have been so called, had so much more of Scotch than English blood in their veins, that they were rightly considered to be Scotch, even when they bore English names.

The first reliable date in connection with William and Margaret Strobridge is from the Middleborough town records. The next one is from the records of the First Church (Cong.) of Middleborough, and reads: "Sept. 9, 1722 [which evidently means the time he joined the church], William Strowbridge from Donough, Ireland, removed 1725 to West Parish [another part of the town, now Lakeville], Middleborough, died Nov. 14, 1777, aged 87"; also: "Margaret Strowbridge, from Donough, Ireland, dismissed 1726 to West Parish; died Dec. 8, 1776, aged 83."

There is no doubt about their having been Presbyterians, but it is well known that at the time it was considered imperative that a person should be a member of some church, and as there was then no Presbyterian church with which they could connect themselves, they did the next thing, joined the Congregationalists, and remained with them probably to the end of their lives, although their children appear to have been a few years later among the followers of Rev. John Morehead.

A deed to William "Strawbridge" of Middleborough, dated Dec. 3, 1728, is recorded at Plymouth, Mass., from which it appears that he did not at once become the owner of land. Other deeds dated Sept. 23, 1729; Feb. 12, 1731; Apr. 18, 1733; July 1, 1736; Aug. 1, 1741; May 1, 1742; Nov. 17, 1743; June 30, 1744; Nov. 11, 1747. (Those of 1741, '42, '43 and '47 read Strobridge, all the others Strawbridge.) -

There are also four later deeds to William Strobridge. He is mentioned as a husbandman, and all the early deeds seem to be of woodland.

The author has seen the original deed from William "Strawbridge" of Middleborough, of 18 1-4 acres land in Middleborough to James "Strawbridge"; consideration, £40; date, Mch. 5, 1738-9. This ancient document is the property of Mrs. Harriet B. (Dean) Barstow, of Taunton, Mass., a great-great-granddaughter of William Strobridge, senior. A facis here given. For some time the author was inclined to the opinion that the early members of the family wrote the name Strawbridge, and that Strobridge was a comparatively recent mode of spelling; but the signature to this deed disposes of the question, though why the name should be found spelled Strawbridge in the very document signed Strobridge is inexplicable. Rev. John Morehead evidently considered the name identical with Strawbridge, for in his records of the baptisms of William Strobridge's grandchildren, he invariably wrote it Strawbridge.

MARY STROBRIDGE², dau. of WILLIAM (1), was b. 1717 or 1718 (there is authority for both dates). Some accounts say she was b. in Ireland, others that she was b. on the voyage to America; m. in Middleborough, Mass., to JOHN MONTGOMERY, Jan. 30, 1735, by Benjamin Ruggles of Middleborough, and d. May 16, 1790. It is said that John Montgomery was b. in Scotland, and lived there until he was 7 years of age, when his parents removed to the north of Ireland; that he came to America with William Strobridge, his guardian, when about 12 or 14 years of age. There is also a tradition that he came in company with Rev. John Morehead, but this is certainly incorrect, for Mr. Morehead did not arrive much, if any, before 1727.

The inscription on John Montgomery's gravestone shows that he was b. not far from 1708, and allowing that he was only 12 years old at the time of his arrival in America, it must have occurred in 1719 or '20. All traditions — for there seem to be no authentic accounts — agree that the Strobridges, Pickens, and McCullys, who settled near each other in Middleborough, came from the north of Ireland at the same time, but the exact date of their emigration is a matter of dispute and varies from 1717 to 1722, to suit the circumstances.

William Strobridge was a blacksmith, and of him John Montgomery learned that trade. It is said that he was a man of considerable wealth. In 1729 Rev. John Morehead's church was organized in Boston, and John Montgomery was one of twelve elders of the church, each of whom had special supervision over a portion of the members of the church, who were scattered about in various parts of New England. Elder Montgomery went once a year to Boston to represent his own charge, and on the Sabbath preceding his departure special prayers were offered for his safe return. His gravestone in Thompson Hill cemetery, at Lakeville, formerly West Parish of Middleborough, Mass., has the following inscription: "Elder John Montgomery Died Oct. ye 19, 1787 in ye 80th yr." By it is another stone with this inscription: "Mary Strobridge, wife of Elder John Montgomery, Died May ye 16, 1790."

Since a very large proportion of the persons whose history is given in this work are descendants either of Elder John Montgomery or his sister Sarah, it is proper that the pedigree of the branch of the Montgomery family to which they undoubtedly belonged, should find a place in the work. The author has bestowed considerable study upon the subject, and has come to the conclusion that her ancestress, Sarah Montgomery, and her brother, Elder John, were in some way related to William Montgomerie, of Brigend, Ayrshire, Scotland, who married Isabel Burnett, in Edinburgh, Jan. 8. 1684; came to America 1701-2, and settled in New Jersey.

Elder John Montgomery gave to his children names which prevailed in the Brigend family, viz: John, William, Thomas, Robert, Hugh, Isabel, Jean, and Margaret, while Sarah, his sister, named her five sons by her first marriage, William, Alexander, Robert, James, John, all common in the Brigend family.

This identity of names can hardly be simply a coincidence; John and Sarah Montgomery certainly belonged to some one of the Scotch Montgomery families, and the author believes that one to have been the Brigend family of Ayrshire, and she has taken the trouble to trace, on the Montgomery chart accompanying the "Montgomery Genealogy," by Thomas H. Montgomery of Philadelphia, the pedigree of William Montgomery, who settled in New Jersey in 1701-2, back to the first of the name known to history.

Although the relationship between this William and the John and Sarah in whom the author is particularly interested can not at present be shown, she feels sure that such relationship existed, and that it is her own line which she has traced back.

"ROGER DE MONTGOMERIE, COUNT OF MONTGOMERIE, before 912. A native of Neustria himself, his ancestors were probably, for many generations back, natives of that province which, when conquered by the Northmen, was afterwards known as Normandy."

Pedigree traced back 27 generations, to Roger the First.

HENRY STROBRIDGE², son of WILLIAM (1), was b. Apr. 17, 1722, in Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), Mass.; m. JEAN GORDON, who was b. at Voluntown, Conn., Dec. 13, 1728. A scrap of paper, yellowed by time, is carefully preserved by a descendant of Henry and Jean (Gordon) Strobridge, on account of what is thereon written. The writing reads as follows: "Marriag intended Between Henry Strobridg of Middlebery and Jean Gordon of Voluntown."‡

* The only complete (or nearly so) record of these children is found in the records of baptisms kept by Rev. John Morehead, a copy of which is in the office the City Registrar, Boston, where the author obtained the dates of the baptism of the children (with one exception) in this list. There is no record of their births in existence probably.

† From Kingman's "History of North Bridgewater, Mass.": "THOMAS HENRY came from Ireland about 1740, and settled in the northeast section of the town, on or near the place occupied by Theron Ames. He married Ann Miller, Mar. 21, 1743.

‡ The following is a copy of a record owned by Mrs. Jane G. (Dean) Jackson of Taunton, Mass., a descendant and namesake of Mrs. Jean (Gordon) Strobridge:

^a George Gordon, Born August ye 23, 1726.

Jean Gordon, Born December ye 13, 1728.

Robert Gordon, Born March ye 14, 1731.

Mary Gordon, Born Oct. ye 6, 1733.

The above as appears of Voluntown Records."

They lived in what was then the West Parish of Middleborough (now Lakeville), Mass. Mr. S. was one of the selectmen of Middleborough in 1779 and 1780, and appears to have had a good deal to do with real-estate matters. He d. Nov. 9, 1795, and his son-in-law, Joseph Dean, was appointed administrator to his estate. Mrs. Jean (Gordon) Strobridge survived her husband over nineteen years, dying at her daughter's, Mrs. Joseph Dean's, Feb. 8, 1815.

Her gravestone says she was in her 84th year, but if the Voluntown record is reliable, she was past 86 when she died. She and her husband are buried in the Thompson Hill cemetery at Lakeville, Mass. Mr. Strobridge's tombstone has this inscription:

"Memento Mortis
Henry Strobridge, died Nov. 7, 1795, aged 74

Look, oh! my offspring, see, my friends,
The mandate which our Saviour sends;
See how the living now are hurled
Before the Judge of all the world."

Among a lot of ancient documents owned by Mrs. Harriet B. (Dean) Barstow of Taunton, Mass., a descendant of Henry Strobridge, there are several deeds which give some idea of his land transactions, as well as of the different ways in which the family surname was spelled at different times and by different individuals:

Nov. 14, 1747, "Philip Padelford, gentleman," deeded to "Henry Strobridge, laborer," 195 acres of land in Middleborough and Taunton; consideration "£1300, Old Tienor."

Witnesses,
Seth Williams.
Thomas pikens.

Sept. 17, 1751, "William Strawbridge Junr his Deed to Henry Strawbridge" three lots of land, containing in all about 86 1-4 acres; consideration "£86. 13. 4. Lawfull money."

Witnesses, }
William Canedy. } On the back of this deed is the quitclaim

Nov. 5, 1764.

The author, in endeavoring to trace the Gordon ancestry of family (3), obtained only the following additional items:

"George Gordon m. Jennet Gibson, Dec. 20, 1748.

Robert Gordon m. Jane Kelson, Apr. 21, 1757.

Jean Gordon (dau. of George?) m. John Dixon, May 3, 1764."

WILLIAM STROBRIDGE, JR.², son of WILLIAM (1), was b. Aug. 21, 1724, in Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), Mass.; m. (1) June 16, 1748, JEAN THOMPSON (her name is also given as Jennet), who d. Feb. 17, 1757, æ. 32. She was doubtless a dau. of Archibald Thompson, a Scotch-Irish settler of North Bridgewater, and probably was b. at Abington, Mass.†

* Is there an error in giving 63 as above? Should it have been 65?

† Kingman says in his history of North Bridgewater, Mass., that Archibald Thompson, wife, and son Robert, came to America in 1724; resided a short time in Abington (Mass.), afterward at Bridge-

Mr. Strobridge m. (2) MRS. SARAH (Montgomery) MORRISON, widow of William, and sister of Elder John Montgomery of Middleborough, Mass., whose wife, Mary Strobridge, was the oldest sister of Mr. Strobridge. (See Part II for the genealogy of the descendants of William and Sarah (Montgomery) Morrison.

Mr. Strobridge was a farmer and blacksmith (?); lived at Middleborough (West Parish), and d. there Apr. 1, 1797. His farm and the house that he built are still owned by his descendants. Mrs. Sarah (Montgomery) (Morrison) Strobridge d. at Middleborough Oct. 3, 1817, in her 90th year. William Strobridge, Jr., and his two wives are all buried and have tombstones in the Thompson Hill cemetery at Lakeville.

He was a Presbyterian, and Rev. John Morehead's record of baptisms shows that the older children of Mr. S. were christened by him.

It is said that William Strobridge was accustomed to go to Boston once a year on horseback to Communion, his wife riding behind him on a pillion, and usually carrying an infant to be christened.*

The following is a copy of a deed from William Strobridge, Jr., to his brother Henry. It will be seen that the surname of the brothers is spelled "Strawbridge" in the document:

water. Mr. Thompson made the first wheel for spinning linen in New England. He was one of the early settlers of North Parish.

 2. ELIZABETH, b. Oct. 16, 1757.
 3. JENNET, b. Aug. 26, 1759.
 4. MARGARET, b. May 17, 1761.
 This family removed to Londonderry, N. H.
- ii. JEAN or JANET, b. probably in Abington, Mass., about 1725; m. WILLIAM STROBRIDGE, JR., of Middleborough, Mass. This child is not given by Kingman, as she must have been b. before the family removed to N. Bridgewater.
- iii. THOMAS, m. ELIZABETH STROBRIDGE, 1754.
- iv. ARCHIBALD, m. MARTHA ROBINSON; removed to Nova Scotia.
- v. JAMES; removed to Charleston, S. C. He studied for the ministry and had a call to Blandford, Mass., but appears to have soon given up preaching, for it is said he went to South Carolina as a teacher.
- vi. JOHN, d. young.
- vii. BETSEY, m. a STROBRIDGE of Middleborough.
- viii. ANNA, m. ROBERT FULTON, July 23, 1767.
- ix. JANE, m. ANDREW GAMMEL, 1756.

There must be several errors as well as omissions in the foregoing record. For instance, "Agness," dau. of Archibald Thompson, bapt. by Rev. John Morehead of Boston, May 21, 1735, is not mentioned. There is no trace of any "Strowbridge of Middleborough" who could have m. Betsey Thompson. Probably the item refers to Jean, who m. William Strobridge, Jr.

A number of the children of Archibald Thompson were bapt. by Rev. John Morehead, which shows that he was a Presbyterian.

* A great-grandson of Mrs. Sarah (Montgomery) (Morrison) Strobridge is the possessor of a pewter platter, said to have been the property of Sarah Montgomery, and to have been brought from the "Old Country." It has on it the letters J. M. S., arranged as shown, and was given to the present owner, Nelson Montgomery Pierce, of Ludlow, Vt., by his mother, for his name. He would like to know what the letters stand for, as would also many others, and if any one reading this possesses the knowledge, he or she is kindly invited to communicate the same to the author of this work.

Aug. 20, 1753, JAMES, son of Thomas* and Margaret (Steele) PICKENS of Middleborough. James Pickens was b. about 1717, in the north of Ireland, was a farmer, and lived on the land owned by and in the house built by his father. He d. at Middleborough Mar. 22, 1800, in his 84th year. Mrs. Mar-

* THOMAS PICKENS—for it is settled that his name was Thomas and not John, as has been claimed by some of his descendants,—is said to have come to America at the same time with the Strobridges and McCulleys. He settled in the West Parish of Middleborough, just when it is impossible to determine. The first mention of a Pickens in the Land Records at Plymouth is in 1736, when Thomas Pickens of Freetown gave a deed of land to John Tinkham (Vol. 31, Registry of Deeds, p. 99). It would seem from this, that if Thomas Pickens came with the Strobridges to America, he did not at first settle in Middleborough, but in 1739 was at that place according to the following: Thomas Pickens of Middleborough to son James Pickens of Middleborough, deed dated 1739 (Reg. of Deeds, vol. 33, p. 53). The deed to which this signature was attached is dated May 5, 1739. The same deed has an endorsement on the back by two witnesses who saw Thomas Pickens, deceased, sign the deed, which endorsement is dated November of the same year.

Another record is a deed from Thomas Pickens of Freetown to Nathaniel Holloway and Isaac Pierce of Middleborough, in 1748 (Ibid, vol. 39, p. 239).

There is also a deed recorded 1749 in vol. 40, p. 133, of land sold by Thomas Pickens of Freetown, in 1736, to Elkanah Leonard of Middleborough.

The following extract from a letter of Mr. John Pickens of New Bedford to his son John in Boston, Jan. 6, 1807, will be found of interest, for the writer must have known his grandparents, Thomas and Margaret Steele, and could therefore speak with some certainty. He says:

"Of the Father's side. My grandfather, Thomas Picken (the final s was added in this country) with his wife (maiden name was Margaret Steel), and their children were Jane, Andrew, and James, twins about two years old, emigrated to America about the year 1717, one year more or less, and landed at Boston from a rough and tedious voyage of eleven weeks." [Right here a note must be made.

JAMES STROBRIDGE², son of WILLIAM (1), was b. 1729, in Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), Mass.; m. MARY GORDON of Voluntown, who was b. at Voluntown Oct. 6, 1733, and was a sister of the wife of his brother Henry. In 1754 Moses Inglee of Halifax, Mass., deeded a piece of land containing 22 1-2 acres to James Strowbridge, Junr. ["Junr" seems to have been added to his name in the document, in order to distinguish him from his uncle, James Strobridge, who was then living at Middleborough.] This land was afterwards conveyed to Henry Strobridge, an older brother of James, and by him deeded in 1788 to his daughter, Anna Dean. James Strobridge removed to Northfield, Mass., previous to or in 1783, and d. there Oct. 23, 1811, æ. 82; his wife d. Mch. 3, 1817, æ. 84; both are buried and have tombstones in an old cemetery at Northfield.

James Pickens d. Mar. 22, 1800, in his 84th year, and must have been b. about 1717. If two years old at the time of emigration, that must have been not later than 1719. If a year old or over, might have come in 1718. Now if Thomas Pickens and family came to America in 1718 or '19, and in company with the Strobridges and others, then the latter were here before 1720 or 1722, as claimed by some of the Montgomery family, and the author thinks the evidence is altogether in favor of 1718 or '19.]

They lived in a little town in Milton, thence went to Freetown, soon after (?), settled in the southwest part of Middleborough, on land which some of their grandchildren still inherit.

They came from a town called Ballygully, near Coleraine, in the north part of Ireland. After they came to this country they had two sons and two daughters: Martha, John, Margaret, and Thomas; whether they had any that died young I do not know. ⁷⁷

The remainder of the letter is entirely genealogical, and concerns branches of the family not related to the Strobridges, and will have to be omitted for lack of space.

* In 1778, on the roll of Capt. Amos Washburn's company, raised in Middleborough, appear the names of James Pickens, corp., Alexander, Samuel, and William Pickens, privates, and in Capt. Job Pierce's company, on duty at Rhode Island in 1777, are found the names of Samuel Pickens, corp., and William Pickens, private.

* The parents of Boice Cooper were Francis and Elizabeth (dau. of John North) Cooper, who came from Cloneen, Kings Co., Ire., and settled at Broad Bay, Me. Elizabeth North was of a very respectable family, many of whose members have held high positions under government. It is said that the father of Boice Cooper was a man of property, who emigrated from Ireland in a brig of his own, with a numerous train of dependents, bound to him for a certain number of years to pay for their passage over. He resided first at Portsmouth and afterwards at Pemaquid, coasting in his own vessel, his wife and family sometimes making their home on board. Many amusing stories about Boice Cooper are related in "Eaton's Annals of Warren, Me.," from which work the foregoing was taken, and to which the author is indebted for most of the records of Robert Montgomery's descendants.

a deed given by Robert Stobridge and wife to his father, in 1798, are here reproduced.

In an article furnished for the Middleborough Gazette by Gen. E. W. Pierce of Assonet, Mass., in Sept., 1889, he says: "One of the most widely known of the Stobridge family residing in Middleborough (that part now Lakeville), a century ago, was Lieut. Robert Stobridge. His landed property was extensive, and deemed to be very valuable. His title of lieutenant was derived from the fact that while the Revolutionary war was still progressing (July 1, 1781) he was commissioned by Governor Hancock as lieutenant of one of the military companies in Middleborough; Abraham Shaw being at the same date commissioned as captain, and John Smith ensign. Lieut. Robert Stobridge had previously had a little of actual war experience, for, in the capacity of sergeant of Capt. Amos Washburn's company, he had participated in the defense of Old Dartmouth (now New Bedford, Fairhaven, and Acushnet) in the month of Sept., 1778. Captain Washburn's company was all raised in Middleborough, and perhaps all within the limits of what is now the township of Lakeville.

* Dea. William Nelson was son of Thomas and Hope (Higgins) Nelson, grandson of William, Jr., and Ruth (Foxwell) Nelson; great-grandson of William and Martha (Ford) Nelson. This branch of Nelsons was among the earliest purchasers and pioneers of ancient Middleborough. Mrs. Elizabeth (Nelson) Stobridge was sister of three distinguished Calvinist Baptist clergymen, viz., Rev. William, b. 1741, d. 1806; Rev. Samuel, b. 1748, d. 1832; Rev. Ebenezer, b. 1753, d. 1825.—Gen. E. W. Pierce.

"To show with what alacrity, patriotic willingness, and commendable readiness, the Scotch-Irish element of West Middleborough (now Lakeville) responded to that cry of distress from their adopted country, "The British soldiery are landing," we will give some of the names known from Captain Washburn's company, being those of men who, at the risk of life and limb, helped drive the invader from our shores: Lieut. Andrew McCully, Sergt. Robert Strobridge, Corp. James Pickens, Hugh Montgomery, Alexander Pickens, Andrew Pickens, Jr., John Pickens, Henry Strobridge, and William Strobridge. Of the above list six or more must have been descendants of the emigrant William Strobridge. Lieut. Robert Strobridge was elected selectman of Middleborough the year that he died, 1790. His death, which took place Aug. 14, 1790, was very sudden and wholly unexpected. Coming home from labor in the harvest field, he sought to quench his thirst with a cooling draught of water, and seeking to obtain it he lost the bucket in the well, and going down to regain the bucket his heated system received such a shock that he lived barely long enough to get out of the well. His remains rest in the ancient cemetery near Thompson Hill, so called, in Lakeville, and the spot is marked by a substantial slab of dark-colored stone, upon which is legibly inscribed the date of his death and age (39) at the time."

Tradition has informed us that the inventory of the effects of Lieutenant Strobridge showed him to have been in the possession of greater wealth than any man in the town of Middleborough had previously been known or supposed to possess.

ANNA STROBRIDGE³, dau. of HENRY (3), was b. Feb. 26, 1755, in Middleborough, Mass.; bapt. Nov. 12, 1756, by Rev. John Morehead of Boston; m., Dec. 1, 1774, JOSEPH, son of Joshua and Keziah (Paddock) DEAN* of Taunton, Mass., who

* The ancestor of Joseph Dean was Walter Deane, who, with his brother John, emigrated from England about 1637, and after nearly a year's residence in Dorchester, settled at Taunton, Mass. They came from Chard in Somersetshire, Eng., a town about 10 miles from Taunton, from which place came some others of the early settlers of Taunton, Mass., who named their new home in honor of the one they had left. It is said that the brothers invariably spelled their surname with a final e.

In 1849, when the pamphlet from which this account is taken was published, nothing positive was known of the ancestry of the brothers in England, but it was believed on the authority of Rev. John B. Deane, F. R. S., an eminent antiquary of London, that John and Walter Deane belonged to the family of "Dene of Denelands," and the coat of arms of this family is represented in the pamphlet referred to.

"John and Walter Deane took up their farms on the west bank of the river, about one mile from the center of the present (1849) village of Taunton. Houses occupying the same lots as those erected by them, and nearly the exact sites, are at this day owned and occupied by the descendants of each. The road which passed their dwellings has been called Dean street to this day. Both took the free-man's oath at Plymouth Dec. 4, 1638.

"By a list of the proprietors of Taunton, 1659, made for a division of lands, it is shown that the families of John and Walter Deane consisted of eight persons each." (From the "Deane Family," published 1849, by William Reed Deane, assisted by others.)

Walter Deane, born in Chard, Eng., between 1615 and 1620 (according to Rev. S. Deane), married a daughter of Richard Strong of Taunton, Eng., who came to New England with her brother, Elder John Strong, afterwards of Northampton, in the Mary and John, 1630. (Rev. S. Deane.)

In 1603 Walter Deane's wife, Eleanor, joined him in making a conveyance. This is the latest date at which it is known that either was living. Mr. Deane was a tanner by trade. The names of but three children of his have been ascertained, although it is thought probable that in 1659 he had was b. in Taunton Jan. 1, 1751, and d. there Sept. 7, 1838; she d. in Taunton Sept. 2, 1842. "Joseph Dean was frequently out during the Revolutionary war, and had the command of a company called out to support the court, during Shays' Rebellion." (Mss. letter of Rev. Artemas Dean, son of Joseph.)

He owned a saw-mill in Taunton, and it is said that while Lafayette was in Newport, R. I., during the Revolutionary war, the boards used for the barracks were sawed at the mill of Joseph Dean. Mr. Dean also kept a public house. The dwelling that he built is still in good repair. In it Mrs. Jean (Gordon) Strobridge and her dau., Mrs. Anna (Strobridge) Dean, spent their last days, and under its roof Mrs. Amy (Vickary) Dean, the aged widow of Paddock Dean, is quietly passing her declining years.

six. The remaining three may have been daughters. Walter Deane was a prominent man in town affairs. He was court deputy in 1649, and selectman 1679-86.

There are two documents in existence which have the signature of Walter Deane attached to them, viz., one in Vol. 1, No. 3, of the Hinckley Papers, Mass. Hist. Soc. Library, the other an inventory of the estate of William Crewe, June 14, 1672.

He also bequeathed to his two grandsons Joseph and Nathan Dean his "Great Stillard" [Steel-yard].

* Jabez Fox was a descendant of Thomas¹, b. in England, 1608; came to America in 1638. Tradition and various old writers speak of him as a descendant of John Fox, author of the "Book of Martyrs." Nothing is known of his 1st wife. He m. (2) Mrs. Ellen, widow of Percival Green; had by this marriage Jabez²; probably no other children. He was afterwards twice m., but there is no record of other children. He d. Apr. 25, 1793, æ. 85.

JABEZ², b. 1640; graduated at Harvard college, 1665; ordained to the ministry in Woburn Sept.

1745; was a cloth draper and had a mill at Ketch brook, East Windsor, Conn.; was the first to manufacture Scotch plaid in America. He was killed in a skirmish between Tory dragoons and Connecticut troops, May 20, 1780. It was at a time when Benedict Arnold was sent by Tryon, the British governor of New York city, to harass the Connecticut coast. General Putnam was defending the coast. Jabez Fox raised a company of militia and went to Putnam's aid. A superior force of Arnold's men surrounded Sergeant Fox and his recruits in a brick school-house; the militia fought until their ammunition gave out, and then fled across a field, pursued by the dragoons. Fox was the last to leave, and was overtaken as he was getting over a fence, and his head was cut off by a blow from an English broadsword. One other of his party was killed in the skirmish, and six of the dragoons. All were buried in one grave, which Capt. Jabez (the son) visited 40 years afterwards. The hat which Jabez (the father) wore at the time, with a bullet hole in it, and his coat and sword are in a museum in the town of Becket, Mass., where they had a patriotic celebration over them about 20 years since (1888). Jabez Fox was a clothier in East Windsor, Conn., and put a dam across Ketch brook just below where the Thompsonville carpet factories now are.

CAPT. JOHN STROBRIDGE³, son of WILLIAM, JR. (5), was b. July 4, 1756, in Middleborough, Mass.; bapt. by Rev. John Morehead of Boston, Nov. 2, 1756; m. in Wallingford, Conn., Oct. 14, 1784, PATIENCE (b. May 20, 1762), dau. of Col. — TYLER of Claremont, N. H. (mar. from Claremont records). John Strobridge was a private in Capt. Nathaniel Wood's company, stationed at Roxbury, Mass., April, 1776. It is said that he was an intimate friend of Colonel Green of the Revolution. Tradition says that Captain Strobridge was a thorough gentleman, and a granddaughter of his says she was told by a gentleman who knew him that "he was the politest man he ever saw." He lived for many years at Claremont, N. H., and d. there May 5, 1825. Mrs. Patience (Tyler) Strobridge d. Sept. 15, 1827, at the home of her dau., Mrs. Nancy Chase of Claremont Village.

 115 x. HIRAM, b. Oct. 5, 1799; d. at Stockbridge, Vt., July 18, 1828; unm. His death occurred under the following circumstances: He was employed at the time in a woolen mill at Stockbridge; a fellow-workman, named Godfrey, for some cause became violently angry with Strobridge, and seizing an iron skillet, struck Strobridge on the head with it. One of the legs of the skillet pierced the brain of the young man, and death soon followed. Godfrey was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Not long after he got angry with one of the assistants in the prison at Windsor, Vt., where he was confined, and succeeded in killing him. For this crime he was executed at Woodstock, Vt. The author well remembers the feeling of fear that always seized her as she passed a certain spot in the park at Woodstock Green, on her way to and from school, for there stood, as she was told, the gallows on which Godfrey, the murderer, was hung. It was long years afterward that she learned that Godfrey's first victim was a cousin of her father.

Mrs. Susan C. Bates, a descendant of William Strobridge, contributes the following anecdote: "After the marriage of my grandfather, William Strobridge, to Hannah Crane, he went with his ox team to move her goods to Middleborough. After they were packed on the wagon, his wife's father, Ebenezer Crane, came out and said to my grandfather, 'Doctor Strobridge, I lend you these things.' My grandfather immediately took his oxen from the team, saying: 'I can borrow things nearer home,' and it was not until his father-in-law said, 'I give you these things,' that he put his oxen to the team and drove from the yard."

WILLIAM STROBRIDGE³, son of JAMES (7), was b. Oct. 19, 1756, at Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), Mass.; bapt. Nov. 2, 1756, by Rev. John Morehead, pastor of the Scotch Presbyterian church of Boston; m. (1) Sept. 25, 1779, at Middleborough, by Rev. Ebenezer Hinds, SUSANNAH HINDS, dau. of the officiating clergyman. She d. suddenly not long after their marriage. Mr. Strobbridge was studying for the ministry with his father-in-law at the time of his wife's death. This event threw him into a state of great darkness and despondency, causing him not only to turn his back on the ministry, but to lose for the time his faith and trust in God; and for many years after his second marriage, his wife, HANNAH TUTTLE, to whom he was m. Oct. 10, 1784, often found him weeping for his lost but still beloved Susannah. He resided in Claremont, N. H., for a number of years; rem. to Barnet, Vt., about 1803.

Mr. Strobbridge was a member of the Vermont General Assembly, in October, 1806. At that date was one of the members of the Land Tax committee. (From Governor and Council, Vermont, Vol. v., p. 106.)

He served in the army during the whole of the Revolutionary war, and wore crape on his left arm for 30 days after the death of General Washington.

The following amusing anecdote of William Strobbridge is related by his grandson, Wm. Harvey Strobbridge of Brooklyn, N. Y.: "In the young days of his large family, while living in Claremont, N. H., he spent an evening at a hotel with some friends. Returning late (or early?) he slept soundly. During the morning his wife went to his bedside repeatedly, saying, 'William, don't you want some breakfast?' but William only stretched himself and relapsed again into slumber. Making a final visit to the bedroom his wife began putting things to rights. Lifting his pantaloons from a chair, out of a pocket fell a piece of paper containing the following:

'William Strobbridge, To ———, Dr., for six suppers, $3.00.
 Rec'd payment,
 Signed ———'

"She disturbed him no more. After a considerable time he called, 'Hannah, is n't it late?' She answered, 'Yes, William, but I would n't hurry; if you had six suppers last night, they ought to last you through the day.'"

It may interest some descendants of William Strobbridge to know that his old Queen Anne clock and desk are carefully preserved and treasured by his granddaughter, Mrs. Marilla Wheeler of Portville, N. Y. Mr. Strobridge d. at Barnet, Vt., Mch. or Feb. (both given) 9, 1843. His farm in Barnet is still owned by his descendants.

Mrs. Hannah (Tuttle) Strobridge d. Aug. 1, 1855, æ. over 90 years, having been b. Feb. 16, 1765.

Job Pierce erected a house, in the construction of which only the best materials were used, and when finished was the most elegant dwelling in town. He died Sept. 22, 1805, and left no children, so the estate passed into the hands of his father, who was the only legal heir. [It must have gone rather hard with the widow to see the large property which she had inherited from her father taken from her and given to her father-in-law.—M. S. P. G.] After the just claims of the widow had been satisfied they assigned to her the house and lands of her late husband in Freetown, together with the buildings thereon standing, all the household furniture, one horse, and one cow."

ROBERT STROBRIDGE, JR.⁴, son of LIEUT. ROBERT (21), was b. Apr. 6, 1785; his father dying when Robert was a child, his mother was appointed his guardian. He was one of three heirs to the estate of his grandfather, Henry Strobridge, and his share was "28 dollars, two and one-half cents." His mother's receipt for this money is still in existence. His father, who d. in 1790, left a large estate, to which Robert and his sister Anna were the only heirs. He lived in Freetown, Mass., where he was a man of great popularity.

"Mr. Strobridge was a store-keeper at Assonet, in company with Ebenezer Pierce and Stephen Pickens. The firm transacted a large and lucrative business. He was four times elected to the legislature. His partner was the first postmaster of Assonet, and when he resigned, on account of ill health, Mr. Strobridge succeeded him, and continued in the position until his death." (Gen. E. W. Pierce.)

ROBERT DEAN⁴, son of ANNA STROBRIDGE (22), was b. Oct. 28, 1775, in Taunton, Mass.; "married by a Justice of the Peace in Tivertown, by the name of Hicks, on the 26th Day of July, 1803, to the amiable Miss SUSAN LEAVITT PADELDFORD, only Daughter of Samuel Padelldford."

The above is from Mr. Dean's own memorandum of his marriage. In it he has omitted a portion of his wife's name, which other accounts give as Sarah Susan Leavitt Padelldford. They lived at Taunton, Mass., where he d. May 24, 1822; Mrs. Dean d. Apr. 3, 1850.

"Mr. Dean kept store in the wooden building on Main st., next to N. H. Skinner & Co., now (1889) occupied by a restaurant and sewing-machine store. It was for many years one of the most noted stores in the town of Taunton, and in it was conducted, by several men at different times, a large trade in West India and dry goods, the usual stock of a country store. Mr. Dean's residence at first occupied the site of Skinner's store on Main st., but was afterwards moved to Cedar st., rear of H. R. Peck's store. It is now (1891) occupied by his son, Samuel A. Dean." (Taunton paper.)

- 305 i. ROBERT STROBRIDGE⁶, b. Feb. 6, 1805; m. Sept. 9, 1832, MARY CHANDLER (dau. of William) HODGES, from whom he was divorced; she d. 1886; Mr. Dean d. in Taunton, Dec. 18, 1889; no ch.
- Mr. Dean was the seventh in lineal descent from Walter Deane, one of the first settlers of Taunton in 1637. After attending school and Bristol Academy, at the age of 16 he commenced business as a clerk in the house of Field, Fobes & Co., in Philadelphia. His father dying in May, 1822, at the age of 46 yrs., required the return home of Robert to assist his mother in the settlement of a large estate. In 1824, at the age of 19, he succeeded his father in the manufacturing business at the Dean Cotton Mill, East Taunton (sometimes called "Bear hole"), holding that agency twelve years. Retiring from this position, he entered upon the management of the Brick Mill, in connection with Crocker & Richmond. He served as assignee with Governor Morton, of Horatio Leonard & Co. (East Taunton Iron Works), afterwards of the firm of Morse & Dean, manufacturers of machinery, several years. Mr. Dean was the manager and treasurer of the Dean Cotton and Machine Company twenty-five years, and during the first twenty years the profits netted to the stockholders five times the amount of capital invested. He was a short time treasurer of the Taunton Locomotive Company. In 1873 he retired from active business with a competency accumulated during his successful manufacturing career of half a century. He has been an economical and unostentatious man, a thinker rather than a talker, quietly bestowing liberal portions of his wealth upon his younger relatives and others, also from time to time dispensing generous gifts in needful cases, which will not be forgotten by surviving friends and recipients. The Old Ladies' Home and Historical Hall are included in the list of his beneficiaries. In the latter hall hangs his life-like portrait, in memoriam of the last representative of the active enterprising business men of Taunton, who have passed away. He became a member of this society, Oct. 11, 1886. (From Obituary Record by Secretary of the Old Colony Historical Society, Taunton, Mass.)

REV. ARTEMAS DEAN⁴, son of ANNA STROBRIDGE (22), was b. Aug. 16, 1783, in Taunton, Mass.; m., June 1, 1813, SARAH LOVELAND, who was b. in Hebron, Conn., whence, when she was 4 years of age, her parents rem. to Franklin, N. Y., her home at the time of her marriage.

“The Rev. Artemas Dean was born in ‘Squawbetty’ (East Taunton), Mass., Aug. 16, 1783. He entered Brown university in 1799, and at the close of his junior year went to Schenectady, N. Y., and was graduated at Union college in 1803. He taught school several years in Walton and Franklin, N. Y.; studied law with the Rev. Joel Benedict, pastor of the Congregational church in Franklin, and subsequently studied theology with Mr. Benedict and with the Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Emmons of Franklin, Mass. After his licensure he spent three years preaching in what was called The New Settlements, in western New York (in Locke, Homer, and neighboring towns), and in 1813 was settled as pastor of the Bethlehem Presbyterian church in Cornwall, N. Y., where he continued to officiate till he resigned his charge in 1842. The remaining seventeen years of his life he spent on his farm in New Windsor, N. Y.

“He was six feet and an inch in his stockings; slender in early manhood, but in riper years well rounded out; erect as a mountain pine, and as noble and majestic a figure as one often sees. I once heard the late N. P. Willis speak of his physique in terms of the highest admiration. He was a life-long sufferer from asthma, and inherited with his Strobridge blood a constitutional tendency to the blues, which were sure to crop out when an east wind was blowing, and never enjoyed robust health. His library was not large; he read few books, and like the late Prest. Mark Hopkins, spent much of his time in profound thought on high themes. As a preacher he was clear, Biblical, instructive, and though employing none of the arts of the orator, was at times the most tender and impressive speaker I heard in all my early days. He was a faithful pastor, and had the happiness of seeing his little flock, numbering in 1813 less than twenty souls, become a strong church, with a membership-roll of two hundred and fifty. I once heard my mother say that not less than five hundred were brought into the church under his ministry. The Rev. Chauncey Eddy, agent of the A. B. C. F. M., said that the Bethlehem church gave more to foreign missions, according to its ability, than any other church in the constituency of the Board, excepting only the church in Kingsboro', N. Y., of which the Rev. Dr. Yale was pastor.

“In recalling my father, I am reminded of Hamlet's eulogium of Yorick: ‘a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy.’ I never saw his equal as a raconteur. When he had guests to his mind, he would sit at the table a full hour and a half, pouring out a flood of anecdote, sparkling, humorous, mirth-provoking, keeping the company all the while in roars of laughter, and this without playing the buffoon, or lowering himself a hair's breadth as a minister of Christ.

“My father was a man of deep piety — in the true sense ‘a man of God.’ Many was the time in my boyhood, when in the still hours of night, I would wake from sleep and hear his deep voice raised in earnest prayer. His children all revered him as they revered no other man; and I know, — for we often talked about it in later years, — that we never saw the man under our roof-tree, who had common sense,—fools do n't know any thing,—who, when he looked my father in the face, did not show by his manner that he was consciously in the presence of his superior. And yet my father was singularly modest, put on no airs, never blew his own trumpet, always kept himself in the background.

“‘He was a man, take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again.’”

“I deeply regret that there is no portrait of my father extant.” (Furnished by Rev. Artemas Dean, D. D., of Muncy, Pa.)

REV. JOSHUA DEAN⁴, son of ANNA STROBRIDGE (22), was b. July 16, 1788, in Taunton, Mass.; m. Jan. 7, 1815, MARY MONTGOMERY (76), dau. of Hugh (18) and Anna (Sampson) Montgomery, who was b. Oct. 26, 1788; d. Mch. 27, 1843. Rev. Joshua Dean d. in Groton, N. Y., July 12, 1824.

About the age of seventeen Joshua Dean entered Brown university, with the view of entering the ministry, and after completing his theological studies he labored for considerable length of time as a faithful and successful missionary in the state of Maine. In 1814 was ordained as pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Groton, N. Y., where he remained to the close of his life.

Mr. Dean possessed a sound and cultivated mind and a taste of no ordinary refinement. His religious opinions were strictly Orthodox, but yet he could extend his affections to all good men of every Christian denomination, because he felt with all accurate observers of mankind that some errors in the understanding are consistent with uprightness of heart. He labored with wisdom, zeal, and self-denial, and he had the happiness of witnessing several revivals of religion among his people, and he enjoyed in an unusual degree the esteem and affection of those among whom he lived. He loved the sacred office, and it was evident to his hearers that towards the close of his life he became more and more a consecrated man. His loss was deeply mourned by a large circle of friends. (Condensed from a lengthy obituary notice.)

JABEZ FOX⁴, son of MARY STROBRIDGE (23), was b. Aug. 5, 1777, at East Windsor, Conn.; was less than 3 years old at the time of his father's death; was adopted by Mrs. Betsey (Strobridge) Allen, his mother's sister, who had no sons of her own; his mother taking him to her sister's in (Somers?) Connecticut, on horseback. When he was 16 years old he was apprenticed to the clothiers' trade, with his brother Thomas at Westfield, Mass., but never worked at it after the expiration of his term of service. It is said that he was for a time with his uncle, Capt. John Strobridge, at Claremont, N. H., teaching school and tending store and saw-mill. In 1800 he went to Berkeley, Mass., and engaged in different kinds of business; was storekeeper for his uncle, Luther Crane, and master mariner for 10 years. At Berkeley he held various offices of trust, being chosen in 1820 a member of the convention for revising the constitution. The last 30 years of his life were spent on a farm at Berkeley. He died of cancer, Nov. 30, 1862. Mr. Fox was m. six times; 1st, June 4, 1806, to SALLY, dau. of Governor HASTINGS; (2) to LYDIA HODGES of Taunton, who d. "For a few years after removing to St. Albans, he was associated with Geo. N. Farwell, in manufacturing boots and shoes, in which they employed a large number of hands; he afterwards, conducted his business on a smaller scale, and 4 years ago sold the same to R. H. Sweeny, who had been in his employ for 30 years. Mr. Paull was a long-time member of St. Luke's parish, and had held prominent official relations with the church as vestryman, warden, and delegate to diocesan conventions. He was for a time inspector of U. S. customs, at this port, under the Pierce administration. . . . Mr. Paull was a man of excellent repute and judgment; his benevolence and kind-heartedness were ever conspicuous, and a more exemplary and agreeable man is seldom met with. His loss will be much regretted by the community, not less than by the church of which he was an honored member."—St. Albans Daily Messenger, June 18, 1878.

ELLEN STROBRIDGE⁴, dau. of JAMES, JR. (47), was b. Oct. 6, 1802, in Claremont, N. H.; m. Feb. 18, 1827, JAMES MCLALLEN of Trumansburgh, N. Y., where they spent a long life together, celebrating in 1877 their golden wedding. James McLallen was the son of John McLallen, who emigrated in 1792 from West Stockbridge, Mass., to the neighborhood of Trumansburgh, and his was the first marriage in the town of Ulysses, N. Y. The surname of this family indicates that it was either of Scotch or Scotch-Irish descent. James McLallen d. at Trumansburgh, in 1878, and Dec. 18, 1880, was followed by his wife.

A long and interesting obituary notice of Mrs. McLallen should be given if space allowed, but only a few extracts from it can be admitted. "The education and amusements of the youthful Ellen were after the manner of the period in which she lived. She was familiar with the use of the distaff and spinning-wheel, and possessed such knowledge as could be obtained at the village school-house. At about the age of twelve she was sent to live with relatives in Northfield, Mass., in order to receive the advantages of an academic education; here she remained for several years.

"After graduating at Northfield academy, she spent a few years in teaching in Northfield and an adjacent town, and was at one time a member of the family of the father of Rev. Dwight Moody. In the spring of 1831, 3 years after her marriage, she united with the Baptist church of Trumansburgh.

"About a year before her demise she sustained a paralytic stroke, which rendered useless the entire left side and confined her to a wheel-chair. From this attack she never recovered; she died as she had lived—peacefully, trustfully. She was a devoted wife, a fond mother, and a Christian woman."

— 215 —

LUTHER DEANE⁴, son of ANNA STROBRIDGE (51), was b. May 2, 1810, at Claremont, N. H.; m. 1836, MARIA AMELIA, dau. of EDWARD CLARK of Brooklyn, at Saugerties, N. Y.; she was born in New Hartford, Conn., and d. at her home in Highland, Kan., Nov. 29, 1879, æ. 69 yrs. Mr. Deane d. at his daughter's home in Collinsville, Ill., Mch. 17, 1884.

Soon after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Deane located in Franklin, Mass., remaining there until 1857, when they rem. to Farmington, Ia.; thence to Holden, Mo., thence to Highland, Kan. While living in Franklin Mr. Deane united with the Presbyterian church. To the end of his life he took a deep interest in every thing that concerned the church. From his obituary a few sentences are taken to show in what esteem he was held by his brethren in Highland, Kan.: "To the last he labored faithfully in the Sabbath school, and he always led the singing. Music was his passion; in this he wonderfully excelled, and could not fail to be a leader wherever he went. Even after he had passed his 'three score years and ten' he could distance the young and strong in the softness and melody, and even in the strength of his voice.

"In his family and domestic relations his grace shone the brightest. He suffered the greatest affliction in the loss of his wife, and yet he bore his trial with a meek and quiet spirit. He carried a great joy in his heart and gave expression to it in the sweet songs he sung, with every feature expressive of his sublime trust in God."

From the obituary of Mrs. Maria Amelia (Clark) Deane: She grad. at Litchfield (Conn.) Academy with the highest honors. While in Litchfield she united with the Episcopal church, having been confirmed by Bishop Griswold. After her marriage while living in Franklin, Mass., she united with the Emmons church. In 1857, in Iowa, she joined the Presbyterian church and after removing to Highland, Kan., continued to the end a faithful member of the Presbyterian church. She was the first one to suggest the formation of a Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church of Highland, and the society doubtless owed more to her than to any other member, and her heart, her contributions, and her pen were at all times loyal to its interests. Mrs. Deane was the personification of generosity, and the extent of her benefactions was only limited by her means. To her fellow-members her sympathy, her encouragement, her beautiful example, and her enthusiasm were invaluable. Guilelessness was in her character a remarkable trait. One who knew her said of her, "Her gifts as a poetess were rare, and always recognized as of the highest order, and many are the hearts over the land that have been moved by her sprightly wit and beautiful imagery. The Commencement exercises of Highland University have always been enlivened with an appropriate poem from her pen." The high esteem in which she was held was manifest in the many anxious inquiries during her illness and the large concourse of people of all classes who attended her funeral.

The above is condensed from the obituary published as an introduction to the little volume containing Mrs. Deane's poems, from which we have selected the following as an example of her gift:—

THE FIEND OF THE STILL.

Where the fierce lupine grows
 Alas, for the rose,—
 Or the reed that lies prone on the sill—
 'T is broken,—'t was frail,—
 And the mighty prevail,
 Led on by the Fiend of the Still.

What harrowing fears,
 What numberless tears,
 Oh, the fountains of sorrow they fill,
 While the God-given mind,
 Which else can not bind,
 Goes down with the Fiend of the Still.

Bread, bread, is the cry,
 Bread, bread, or we die,
 For the wheel grindeth slow at the mill;
 Bread, bread, is the cry,
 Bread, bread, or I die,
 Is the shout of the Fiend of the Still.

The earth, full of blood,
 Cries out to her God,
 And the tippler runs riot at will,
 A man-weevil train,
 Despoileth the grain,
 To nourish the Fiend of the Still.

Young mortals, beware,
 Of this foul subtle snare!
 Like a viper it strikes but to kill;
 Flee, flee for your life,
 For fatal 's the strife
 To dally with Fiend of the Still.

Doctor Strowbridge has worn the bloomer costume since 1854, and is an earnest believer in woman suffrage.

In 1864 Mr. Strowbridge responded to the country's call for soldiers by raising a company in the 185th regt., N. Y. State vols., and went out as captain of Co. F.

They left Syracuse Sept. 23, 1864, and were in the trenches not far from City Point in about a week.

Captain Strowbridge was in the following battles: First Hatcher's Run, Oct. 26 and 27, 1864; Weldon Run, Dec. 6-12, 1864; second Hatcher's Run, Feb. 26, 1865; Watkins' Farm, Mch. 25; Jucker Roads, Mch. 29; Gravelly Run, Mch. 31; Oak Roads, Five Forks, Apr. 1; Appomattox Court House, Apr. 9, 1865, and in the final battles before Petersburg, and was among those who took the arms from the Confederates when Lee surrendered. He has a box of cartridges which he received from the hands of Governor Wise at the time of the surrender. Mrs. Strowbridge writes, "His army life was short as months are counted, but it was full of work and anxiety, both for him in the field and for myself in the home with our boys. At one time there were three weeks when I did not hear from him at all. They were on the march, with communications cut, and we could not know, only fear the worst."

H.; the death of her mother, when Mary was but 11 yrs. of age, occasioned the breaking up of the family, and places were found where she and her younger brother could work for their board. In 1845 she was sent to Lowell, Mass., to work in a cotton mill; after a few years she left the factory and attended school for a short time at a village academy; after this she learned the vest-maker's trade, at which she worked until 1854, when she was persuaded to join some friends who wished to try the life at the North American Phalanx, a joint stock association in Monmouth county, N. J. Here she remained a year and a half, and was present at the final breaking-up of the association in Oct., 1855. She was m. in Lowell, Mass., Oct. 7, 1857, to ISAAC ORR, son of Isaac and Betsey (Tracy) GUILD, who was b. in Francestown, N. H., June 19, 1831. Mr. Guild was at the time and for thirty years following, in the marble business at Lynn, Mass.

Since 1883 the author has devoted most of her time to genealogical work. Besides the present work she has prepared a genealogy of the Massachusetts Stiles family, which is now passing through the press.

In matters of religion, politics, and matters generally, she has always been on the side of progress. She was an abolitionist when the name was held to be a reproach; a sympathizer with the ideas of Theodore Parker, when his followers were few; an advocate of woman suffrage, and a friend of all the great reforms of the day.

Mr. Strobridge lost his eyesight some years ago through intense application to the work of cataloguing ancient coins, but this misfortune seems to have been atoned for, in some measure at least, by allowing him more opportunity for purely intellectual pursuits.

The extracts below are from an article which appeared in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Sunday, July 25, 1886, describing a visit to Mr. Strobridge's studio :

"It is a mistake to suppose that every thing that is rare and ancient is locked up in the Old World, and that one must cross the ocean to find valuable relics of the past. . . . A visit to the studio of Mr. William Harvey Strobridge, in this city, must convince any one to the contrary. The loss of his eyesight some years ago, while it interfered with an employment which depends so greatly on the eye as that of an art collector, seemed only to increase the love of it, and make the spoils of time more precious to our Brooklyn antiquary. As with John Milton, who, but for his blindness, would never have seen such heavenly visions, or woven into his immortal verse so many crowns of amaranth and gold, so the refined and patient student of the past, to whom the reporter paid a visit, has been more devoted to art treasures since he lost the power of seeing them When physical misfortune happens to us it is often made up for by a keener interest in intellectual and reflective pastimes. . . . Mr. Strobridge has intellectual resources enough to keep him always busy and cheerful; he is skilled in the art of poetry, and some of his poems are worthy to be preserved in permanent form. The gems and relics with which every nook and corner of his studio abound are each of them a compendium of historic lore as well as of personal reminiscence. . . . Mr. Strobridge was born in the town of Barnet, Vt., in 1822. The late Henry Stevens, the famous antiquarian collector of London, was born in the same place about five years previously. Mr. Strobridge was early intimate with him, but Mr. Stevens' thirty years' residence in London necessarily kept them apart, although each one has always kept informed as to the doings of the other, and when Mr. Stevens visited his mother, in 1870, Mr. Strobridge was the first person invited to meet him. . . .

Mr. Strobridge came to New York to reside in 1851. It was at that time that he first became enthused with art, especially with paintings, of which he was an acknowledged judge and discriminating collector. He took with him to Baltimore, in 1860, about one hundred gems from the studios of American artists. From that time he became a collector of coins, and gathered quite a large collection in Baltimore, which became famous throughout the country. . . .

Mr. Strobridge has many pleasant reminiscences of his fellow collectors in the walks of antiquarian art. The war drove him away in 1862, but he came back when there was peace again in his antiquarian market. In New York he then held large auction sales of coins he imported and articles of antique currency” [The article is long and full of interest, but can not be quoted in full.]

Extracts from Mr. Strobridge's poem entitled,

NEW ENGLAND.

Clime of the brave! Home of the free!
 Gladly I'll twine a wreath for thee;
 A wreath I'll twine and hang it high
 On some proud altar rising nigh,—

Rising until it reach the sky,—
 For so thy mountains rise, fair land,
 Like altars of the world they stand.

Oh! gaily o'er thy deep green hills
 The bobolink his matin trills;
 And swiftly o'er thy meads and vales
 Sweep the light clouds and balmy gales.
 Spread wide beneath, far, far adown,
 Are waving fields and hamlets brown;

And many a silver lake is seem,
 Like fluid light to lie between;
 And flashing rills, and purling brooks,
 Are hiding in sequestered nooks;
 And farther than the eye can scan,
 Are pathless woods, untrod by man,
 When moose, and deer, and shaggy bear
 Make, undisturbed, their secret lair.

Here Nature in her sternest mood,
 Dwells in majestic solitude!
 She rears amid these scenes sublime
 A race as hardy as their clime.
 In vain the storm-fiends round them rave,
 The fiercest blasts, unharmed, they brave.
 They hear the tempest bursting near,
 And listen with delighted ear;
 Yet are they no untutored race,
 Nor wanting in each milder grace.

Land of my birth! Clime of my choice!
 New England! hear my latest voice.
 May future sons and daughters fair,
 Long breathe thy glorious mountain air!
 And meet with stainless honor bright,
 Around the glowing hearth by night,
 And feed the roaring winter fires
 First kindled by their free-born sires.

He m. (2) MARY JANE, dau. of Jehiel COE of Winsted, Conn.

In reply to a request for an autobiographical sketch Mr. Strobridge has sent the following: "I really do not feel that it would be of sufficient importance to the world for me to write about myself. I have never achieved any great things. We have built up a pretty large business, but nothing phenomenal. Our company is a corporation, and its results have not been so much achieved by me as to justify my writing myself up, but I will say that I have been in the business since 1854. The company first organized in 1868 under the name of Strobridge & Co., afterwards, in 1880, the name was changed to the Strobridge Lithographing Co. The establishment is noted for its fine and artistic printing, which is seen in almost all parts of the country."

It was hoped that a portrait of Mr. Strobridge would be furnished for this work, but his apparently characteristic reluctance to seem even to put himself forward, has deprived many, who would have enjoyed seeing his portrait, of a great pleasure.

SAMUEL WILLARD LULL⁵, son of HANNAH STROBRIDGE (188), was b. Dec. 17, 1819, in Lisle, Broome co., N. Y.; when he was 14 years old his father moved to Alleghany co., N. Y., Willard and David, a younger brother, started with the cattle, numbering 17 head, one day in advance of the rest of the family, who were to follow with the horses and sleigh, but after the departure of the boys a thaw set in and made it impossible for the second party to go with the sleigh, and the father had to make a wagon, a slow process in those days, before they could follow the young lads, who wandered on alone through the dreary 150 miles of the journey, stopping with relatives as they found them, staying 3 days with one, 2 weeks with another, and 3 weeks with another; they left home in February, and the family, on account of bad roads, did not start until April, nor did the two portions of the family hear from each other in all that time.

When Willard was between 16 and 17 years old he was bound out to George B. Morgan, a builder, to serve a 5 years' apprenticeship; was to attend school 6 months of the time. He remained with his master until within 16 months of his majority, then rebelled and ran away, travelling on foot to Kalamazoo, Mich., where his father owned a farm; this was in the year 1840. His first vote was cast for Harrison, and he participated in the famous political demonstration of the Harrison campaign; helped build the typical "log cabin"; partook of the enormous "Johnny cake," 16 by 2 feet in dimensions, and supposes he must have "sampled" the barrel of "hard cider" provided for the occasion.

Mr. Lull made the first boxes used in the Kalamazoo post-office. In 1842, went to Ohio, and on Mch. 26, 1844; m. CATHERINE A. FERGUSON, who was b. Nov. 11, 1824, and d. Apr. 19, 1852; m. Y.; was the 4th and sole survivor of 8 children; his early education was similar that of young men whose parents were prosperous, but intended their sons for a non-professional life. After attending school at the Homer (N. Y.) Academy he entered his father's store as a clerk, at the age of 18, but he was not of a robust constitution and his health suffered under the confinement of a country store. He made two voyages to Liverpool in the ships of the famous Black Ball line, from which he derived some benefit; he m. Oct. 14, 1857, CORDELIA H., dau. of Jesse G. COREY.

Mr. McLallen was prominently identified with the interests of his native town, as nurseryman, farmer, and merchant; he was a prominent member of the Masonic order; he held various town offices, and as a member of the board of education was an earnest worker in the interest of the public schools. He was also for several years a trustee of the Baptist society of Trumansburg, but his habits were retiring, and he repeatedly declined the acceptance of offices tendered him. In social life he was ever genial and courtly in manner; his simplicity of habit, kindness of heart, attention to his own affairs while refraining from all interference with the affairs of others, made him a man of mark and yet a man of sympathy.

"A life well spent, whose early care it was His riper years should not upbraid his green."

Mr. McFadon graduated from Harvard college in 1878; Harvard Law School, 1881. The following is an extract from the Quincy (Ill.) Optic:

"The remains of Robert D. McFadon, whose untimely and sudden death from pneumonia occurred at his residence in Chicago, on the 3d instant, were brought to this city for burial, the funeral services being held at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Anna C. McFadon, No. 1444 Maine street, on Wednesday morning. In the presence of a large company the last words were said over the flower-laden casket by the Rev. C. F. Bradley, of the Unitarian church in this city, and the Rev. T. G. Milsted of Unity church, Chicago, the pastor of the deceased. The burial at a later hour was at Woodland. Mr. McFadon was well known here, in the city of his birth, as a man of singularly attractive character.

"A graduate of Harvard, both in the classical and law departments, the advantage of foreign travel had broadened his outlook and given additional polish to his instinctively gentle, almost courtly, manners. His ability, ample preparation, and close application had already given him at the early age of thirty-three a high position at the bar of his adopted city, and he had become widely known as a public spirited citizen. But he will be best remembered and most widely mourned, not so much for his attainments as for qualities of the heart, on which Mr. Milsted dwelt in reviewing his character. The possession of these qualities not only made his life an example — not too common — in which the possession of ample means coincides with a disposition to give liberally and the wisdom to give discriminatingly, but the rarer example where to these is added the readiness to give what counts far more — personal service for the relief and improvement for those less fortunate."

REV. THOMAS RANSOM STOBRIDGE⁶, son of GEORGE (588), was b. June 3, 1840, in Hamilton, Can. During his infancy his parents rem. to Cincinnati, O., where in 1845 his father died of consumption; his mother m. (2) F. A. Conwell of Lowell, Ind. Here the family lived for the next 5 years, then rem. to Covington, Ky., thence to Winona, Minn. Mr. Strobridge writes of this period of his life: "Here in a new country I enjoyed the influence of pioneer surroundings for 5 years, which brought me to manhood. From my earliest recollection, I had felt that my life work would be to preach the gospel. I had availed myself of my school advantages, but felt that I needed more training for my great calling. At the age of twenty-one I went to Cincinnati, and was clerking in the dry-goods store of John Shileto when I formed my determination to go to college. I made my purposes known to Rev. J. T. Mitchell, pastor of Wesley chapel, and he unexpectedly laid my case before the official board of that church, and they raised for the young biblical student $50. When Mr. Shileto learned of my purpose he handed me $10. This paid my fare to Chicago, and when I reached Evanston, a suburb of that city, I had my $50. Here I remained for 7 years, graduating in the summer of 1867 at the Northwestern University, and in the summer of 1868 at the Garrett Biblical Institute. My fifty dollars took me through the first summer, 1861; then in various ways I was obliged to earn my bread and carry on my studies at the same time. In 1865 I served for six months, which included a vacation, in the great war for the preservation of the Union. In the fall of 1868 I joined the Rock River Conference, which included Chicago and adjacent territory, and here I have had my appointments, and as yet have missed but one pulpit service on account of sickness. I have lately been elected a member of the Pan American congress. I was m. to NELLIE MAUD SMITH of Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, in 1874; res. at Princeton, Ill."

GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS

WILLIAM AND SARAH (MONTGOMERY) MORRISON

BY

MRS. MARY STILES (PAUL) GUILD

While I am not one that worships blood, still I believe that many a man is encouraged to greater efforts by knowing that his race has been of progressive stock.

BRADFORD MORSE.

Riverside, Cal., March, 1891.

INTRODUCTION

THE author has been unable to learn anything of the ancestry of Robert Morrison, the father of William, whose descendants are traced in the following pages. That he belonged to a Scotch-Irish family can not be doubted, and it is probable that he was nearly related to the Morrisons who settled Londonderry, N. H., whose history, and that of their descendants, has been so well traced by one of the latter, Hon. Leonard A. Morrison of Canobie Lake, N. H. Mr. Morrison has published several works relating to the Scotch-Irish, and from one of these, the "History of Windham, N. H.," the author, with Mr. Morrison's permission, has made a few extracts to serve as an introduction to this portion of her book.

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY OF MORISON.

"The family of Morison is very numerous in Scotland, and the name has been a fixed surname there and in the adjacent Island of Lewis for many centuries, probably for a thousand years. It is an old name in the counties of Lincoln, Hertfordshire, and Lancashire, Eng., where persons of the name, several centuries ago, were knighted, and received coats-of-arms. The family has spread over England, Ireland, and America. It appears to be evident that all of the name spring from the same stock, and have a common origin.

"The Island of Lewis, on the west coast of Scotland, is undoubtedly the place where the family originated, though its founder was probably of Norwegian origin. In regard to the origin of the family, the following evidence is presented: In Captain Thomas' 'Traditions of the Morrisons,' an extract is made from 'A Description of the Lewis by John Morisone, In-dweller there,' written presumably between 1678 and 1688, wherein he says: 'The first and most ancient inhabitants of this countrie were three men of three several races, viz: Mores, the sone of Kennanus whom the Irish* historians call "Makurich," whom they make to be son of one of one of the kings of Norway, some of whose posteritie remains in this land to-day. All the Morrisons in Scotland may challenge their descent from this man'" (pp. 19, 20). . . .

"Another tradition preserved in the branch of Morisons, which settled in Nottingham, N. H., is to the same effect, and points in the same direction. This branch of the family emigrated from Scotland to Ireland at the time of the siege of Derry (1688), and to Nottingham, N. H., in 1727. This statement is from Hon. Robert Morrison of Northwood, N. H., a former mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., who received it in the early part of the present century from an aged relative, whose birth dates back to 1750. While giving him words of admonition, this aged person said: 'Maintain the honor and integrity of your family, for the Morrisons came from the best blood of Scotland; they are descended from the royal family.' Royalty amounts to nothing, and only that man is royal who makes himself so by a noble life and heroic deeds.

"This evidence is adduced to show the ground there is for belief in the consanguinity of the different branches. The reader will not fail to notice the striking similarity of these traditions, coming down for two centuries through different channels. We know of no intercourse between the Morrisons of New Hampshire and the Morisons of Scotland since the emigration of the former in 1688. The traditions here and the traditions there were separate and independent

"The streams, one in this side of the Atlantic and one on that side, ran unmingled for two hundred years, and yet they retain, in their essential parts, the same current of tradition. These traditions all point in the same direction, and establish beyond a reasonable doubt the common origin of the family, and Lewis as its common home" (p. 20).

* This means the Gaelic or Highland Scotch historians.

ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME.*

"There is no authoritative manner of spelling the name. It has been found spelled in many different ways, such as Maryson, Moreson, Moryson, Morreson, Moorison, Morrisson, Morson, Morisown, Morisone, Morison, Morrison, Murison, and Morrowson. In early days the family in Scotland, England, Ireland, and America, almost invariably spelled their name with one r, thus: 'Morison.' This was the customary orthography till about the year 1800, when the change to Morrison became general in Scotland, England, Ireland, and America, and has continued to the present time. The family in Londonderry, N. H., followed the general custom." [As far as has been ascertained, it has been found that the descendants of Robert Morrison of Bridgewater, Mass., with the exception of one branch, also used two r's in spelling their surname.—M. S. P. G.]

"Norman Morison, Esq., of Stornoway, Island of Lewis, Scot., a descendant of the Hereditary Judges,† writes: 'Our family, and indeed the Lewis families, wrote the name with one r, thus: Morison.' George Cruikshanks, Esq., of Scotland, writes, Aug. 30, 1879: 'The Morisons of Bogney, from whom I suppose you are descended, always spelled their name with one r, and I may say they are almost the only family in Scotland who do so.'

"Morison is the original mode of spelling. It comes nearer the supposed derivation of the name, and appears to be the correct orthography."

COATS-OF-ARMS.‡

"The arms as borne by different branches of the Morison family, as given in Burke's Heraldic Dictionary :

"Morison (Dersay, Co. of Fife, Scotland).—Azure (blue); three Saracen heads conjoined in one neck, proper, the faces looking to the chief (front) ; dexter and sinister sides (both sides) of the shield. Motto, Pretio prudentia praestat.

MORISON.

Morison (Lyon Register).—The same, with two falcons' heads couped; azure; in the flanks a serpent issuing, proper. Motto, Pretio prudentia praestat.

Morison (Bogney, Scotland).—The same as of Dersay, with the uppermost head affixed by a wreath to the other two.

Morison (Preston Grange, Scotland).—New Register. Argent (silver or white); three Moors' heads couped, sable two, and one banded of the first. Crests: three Saracen heads, as in the arms of Morison of Dersay. Motto, Pretio prudentia praestat.

Morison.—Argent (silver); a fesse gules (red) between three Moors' heads, sable, banded of the second. Crest; three Moors' heads conjoined in one neck, proper, one looking upward, the other two to the dexter and sinister. Motto, Prudentio praestat.

Morison, or Morrison (Cashiobury, Co. Hertfordshire, as borne by Sir Charles Morrison, Knight of the Bath, created a Baronet in 1611. His daughter and heir Elizabeth married Arthur, Lord Capel, and was mother of Arthur, first earl of Essex).—Arms, Or (golden), on a chief, gules (red), three chaplets of the field. Crest: a Pegasus, or (golden).

“Old John Guillim says, writing two hundred years before Burke, who seems to have copied him almost word for word:

'Azure ; three Saracen heads conjoined in one neck, proper, the faces looking toward the chief, dexter, and sinister sides, by the name of Morison.' (Guillim's Heraldry, p. 251.) He seems to imply that what is called the Dorsey Morison's arms belonged to 'the name of Morison.' *

"Nisbet Heraldry, Vol. I, p. 262, says: 'Those of the name of Moir and Morison carry three Moores' heads, relative to their name.'

"Papworth, Armorial, p. 935, says: 'Moor or Moir of Scotland and Murison, have three Moores' heads, argent. These heads are placed one on top of the other two, looking upward.' By implication it would show a connection between the families of Moor and Morison.

"The motto, 'Pretio prudentia praestat,' Fairbairn translates: 'Prudence excels reward.' See Fairbairn's Crests. Elwin, in his Handbook of Mottoes, translates it, 'Prudence is better than profit.' In Washbourne's Family Crests, the translation is, 'Prudence is better than riches.' 'Prudentia comes from pro and video, to see before, to look ahead. This quality of mind is what we call long-headed, and is thoroughly Scotch. By coining an expressive word I would translate it, Long-headedness is above price.' This translation by Dr. N. H. Morison will, I think, be acceptable to most Morrisons.

"It is claimed that these arms and crest were bestowed upon a Morison in the war of the Crusades for some deed of daring, by the English king, Richard I (Cœur de Lion). In this connection, and relative to both crest and name, I will give an extract of a letter from Dr. N. H. Morison, of Baltimore, under date of Mch. 11, 1880. 'The form of the crest—three Moors' heads—is pretty strong presumptive evidence that it came from some incident or incidents connected with the Crusades. Where else could the Gaëls of Scotland have come in contact with the Moors? Men did not travel in those days, and ordinary wars were petty affairs, usually between neighboring chiefs. Fynes Moryson was the greatest traveller of the sixteenth century,—his 'Itinerary Through Ten Kingdoms' being the most reliable

GENEALOGY

WILLIAM MORRISON¹, was the son of ROBERT MORRISON, who came to North Bridgewater in 1740.* When or where he was b. has not been ascertained; m. SARAH MONTGOMERY, Nov. 10, 1748. It is said that he was a navigator, probably res. in North Bridgewater. He d. in prison during the French war. "William Morrison taken prisoner aboard, Capt. Mayor, Bay of Fundy, June 12, 1758, Sarah a pl.t." (New Eng. Hist. Gen. Reg.) The parentage and birthplace of Sarah Montgomery are unknown, but the inscription on her gravestone in the Thompson Hill cemetery, Lakeville, Mass., shows that she was b. in 1728; she was a sister of Elder John Montgomery of Middleborough, Mass., and the writer considers that it may be reasonably claimed that they belonged to the Brigend Family of Montgomerics of Ayrshire, a branch of which is traced to Ireland. (See Montgomery pedigree on pages 7-9 of this work). Mrs. Sarah (Montgomery) Morrison m. (2) as 2d wife, WILLIAM STROBRIDGE, JR., of Middleborough (West Parish, now Lakeville), and d. in Middleborough, Oct. 3, 1817, in her 90th year. By her 2d m. she had 5 ch. whose descendants are traced in Part One of this work.

* Kingman, in his "History of North Bridgewater," says "Robert Morrison came to the North Parish of Bridgewater in 1740; had children:

- i. "WILLIAM, m. a STROWBRIDGE and settled in Middleborough." [In this statement things are mixed, it being the widow of William Morrison, who m. a Strobridge of Middleborough.]
- ii. "ALEXANDER, m. — ERSKINE; rem. to Boston." [In the first national census, A. D., 1790, Alexander Morrison of Boston had in his family two free white males of 16 years and upwards, including heads of families, and five free white females, including heads of families. There was also a John Morrison, who had one free white male of 16 and upwards, including heads, and three free white females, including, etc. In the "Direct Tax" of 1798, John was of Boston, but Alexander is not mentioned. These two are the only Morrisons named in the census of Boston in 1790, therefore it is fair to suppose that they were father and son.]
- iii. "JOHN, m. a GIFFEN, rem. to Connecticut. Rev. Giffen Morrison of the Isle of Sable, W. I., was their son." [John Morrison and Elizabeth Giffen were m. Oct. 27, 1766 (record of marriages in North Bridgewater, Mass.). Died in Windsor, Conn., June 18, 1803, in her 26th year, Jennette (wife of Henry) Wolcott, and dau. of John and Elizabeth Morrison.]

ALEXANDER MORRISON², son of WILLIAM (1), was b. in North Bridgewater, Mass., (probably); bapt. Aug. 25, 1752, by Rev. John Morehead of Boston; m. (1) ANN, dau. of John and sister of William THOMPSON of Blandford, Mass.; m. (2) MRS. — HENRY, whose first husband was slain by Indians.*

That the parents of Ann Thompson were Scotch-Irish is unquestioned, but where they lived previous to settling in Blandford, Mass., is not known. There have been many Scotch-Irish emigrants of the name Thompson. If, as seems possible, John, the father of Mrs. Ann Morrison, was the son of Archibald of North Bridgewater, Mass., he must have been a brother to the first wife of William Strobridge, Jr. (5) (Strobridge Genealogy). Archibald Thompson is said to have made the first wheel for spinning flax in America.

Dec. 10, 1776, John Thompson of Blandford granted to Alexander Morrison and wife Ann (no residence given) a life estate in 100 acres bought of one Van Horne. This deed was recorded at Springfield, Mass., Oct. 3, 1788.

* The author has made considerable effort to ascertain whether, if, as seems probable, Mr. Henry was the son of Thomas Henry, who removed from North Bridgewater to Harpersfield, N. Y., previous to the Revolution, and had two sons (Thomas and James) killed by Tories and Indians in 1775 or '76, and a third son John, taken prisoner to Canada, where he d.; but although she has held extensive correspondence with Mrs. Henry's Morrison descendants, no one seems to know much about her first husband.

Since the above was written the author has heard from Dr. Eli Morrison Pinney of Dublin, O., that he believes the name of his grandmother Morrison to have been Mehitable. This was the author's surmise, and there seems to be not much doubt that her maiden name was Mehitable Hull, and that her first husband was James (son of Thomas) Henry, who was killed as above stated.

Nov. 1791, Alexander Morrison of Enfield, Hartford co., Conn., bought of Reuben Gunn of Blandford, 50 acres, part of lot 18,² with house and barn, to hold after Feb. 15.

Feb. 18, 1803, Alexander Morrison and Alexander Morrison, Jr., sold for $1716, the 100 acres, which the father and wife Ann received in 1776 from John Thompson.

The same year (1803) Mr. Morrison removed with his family to Ohio, and settled in what is now Worthington, Franklin co.

From the account of the founding of Worthington, given in the "History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties, O," the following extracts are made :

"On the 14th day of Dec., 1802, a colony was formed in the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut to purchase land and found homes in Ohio. Articles of agreement were made and signed by the owners of the land comprising four sections (or quarters) situated upon and near the Whetstone (now Olen-tangy) river in the military tract, as follows: In the eighteenth range, first township and first section; second township, second and third section, and third township, second section, containing 16,000 acres. The price agreed upon was $1.25 per acre. The purchasers, in the formation of a colony, agreed between themselves that one lot of 100 acres should be perpetually used for the purpose of providing a school, and a lot of 100 acres should be used for the benefit of a Protestant Episcopal church. In the year 1804 the entire tract was partitioned off and divided among the members of the company. There were thirty-six members. William Thompson had lots Nos. 63, —, 82, 103, 115, 141, 142, 146, 159, 160 (10 in all); Alexander Morrison, Sr., had lots 2, 26, 39, 58, 72 (5 lots); Alexander Morrison, Jr., 31, 32, 33, 34, 43, —, 114, 125, 126 (9 lots).

"During the summer of 1803 Lemuel Kilbourne came to Ohio with his family, accompanied by the following persons: Levi Pinney, Alexander Morrison, Jr., Abner P. Pinney, William Morrison, Adna Bristol, E. C. Brown, Israel Case. This party came in advance for the purpose of erecting cabins for the use of the colony, and also to erect a mill. On the 15th of Sept., 1803, James Kilbourne, Ezra Griswold, with various others and their families, commenced their journey towards the setting sun. On the 26th of Oct., the emigrants arrived on the ground where is now situated the town of Worthington. Ezra Griswold occupied a cabin on village lot No. 71, William Thompson No. 70, and Alexander Morrison No. 82. It is a fact that the first timber cut for any kind of building purposes, in the woods where the village now stands, was for a school-house, and the first house erected was a school-house. The first female teacher was Clarissa Thompson, who taught in the summer of 1804. With the first settlers, matters of education were foremost in their minds."

Below will be found a copy of a letter from Alexander Morrison of Worthington, O., to his half-brother, William Strobbridge, Jr., of Middleborough, Mass.

WORTHINGTON, FRANKLIN COUNTY, STATE OF OHIO,
May 24th. 1808.

MR. WILLIAM STROBRIDGE. Sir.

It has been a long time since I have heard anything concerning my friends in that part of the country in which you live, and probably so, since you have heard from me, the reason is obvious.

About the time I removed to this country, which was in the fall of the year 1803—having a great deal of business on hand, and not being much in the habit of writing—I neglected to do so & I suppose not until now, you have not known where or how I live, or whether at all or not, however, I will endeavor to give you a short tho imperfect [history] of my affairs, as to my family, & situation.

I am settled in the State of Ohio, near the Center, in a rich, fertile healthy & handsome country, with all my children about me (except one my oldest daughter who is married to a man in Albany, State of N. York) and enjoy myself extremely well.

I have got a most delightful farm and comfortable buildings. I raise everything in abundance that is necessary for subsistence & that of the best kind.

When I removed to this Country, I came in a company who formed for the purpose of making a settlement here. The Company consisted of upwards of 40 proprietors chiefly heads of families, they in the first instance chose two of their number as Agents who came out the year before the families removed & explored the Country & made a purchase of land for the Company,—we got our Land for $1.25 per acre taking the whole together—we came on in 1803 in a Company which consisted of about 240 souls—we laid off a Town on the East fork of the Scioto River which runs through our purchase & on a beautiful eminence. The lots in the Town contain three fourths of an acre of land & at this time we have a number of good houses built of Brick & several frames, we have three good Mills contiguous to the Town. lots of the above description in the Town, that have no buildings on them, sell from 20 to 150 Dollars each, & farming land from one to three Miles from the Town sells from 2 to 12 Dollars per acre.

You will naturally conclude that this account of the Country which I here exhibit is exaggerated, but far be it from me to state anything more of the Country than it deserves, nor have I the ability even to do it Justice in that respect.

If any persons friends or acquaintance of ours should wish to better their Circumstances by removing to a Country whose Climate is milde & whose soil is inviting I think they would be well compensated for their trouble to come to this country tho the distance is great. Yet that objection is not an insurmountable one, & that is the only one that can with propriety be made. I and all my family have enjoyed better health since we have been in this Country than for many years previous to our removal and I thank God that it has been agreeable to his will to place me & my family in this desirable Country. Brother James lives in the Northern part of this State about 100 miles distance, & from the last account [words torn away] health & doing well.

I have 3 Chil [torn off] married, my two oldest & fourth, & [torn off] 4 Grandchildren. I wish this letter m [torn off] Circulated amongst all my relations [and (?)] my wives as it is impossible for me to write to them all. I wish you & my Brother William to write to me immediately after receiving this & write every particular respecting all my relations & my wives as it is not frequent that I hear from any of them, & not likely that I shall ever see any of them again. Give my love & best respects to my aged Mother in particlular, if yet alive, and to all my Brothers, Sisters, friends & acquaintances in that part of the Country.

Wm. Strobridge, { I remain with sentiments of the highest esteem & affection your friend & Brother,
ALEXANDER MORRISON.

P. S. I wish you not to fail to write me a letter as my anxiety to hear from you is great.

I wish to hear from Brother Robert & family & Uncle Alex'rs family &c,
A. M—

The above letter (the original of which the author has seen) could not have been written by Alexander Morrison himself, as the handwriting is entirely different from that of the signature reproduced at the beginning of this account,—which is a fac-simile of one appended to a deed dated 1804.

The exact date of Mr. Morrison's death could not be ascertained, but it probably occurred within two years of the time of the writing of the above letter.

One of the brethren of the society, Oliver Hampton, wrote of him as follows: "He was an excellent and upright man, and was for some time elder of one of the families at Union Village. I never heard the least breath of fault found against him, either in his calling as an elder, or in his lay-membership. About 1834 he seemed gradually to go into a decline, his appetite failed, and he became weaker and weaker until on Mch. 21, 1835, he passed painlessly away. For the last three months of his sickness I had charge of him, as he was mostly confined to his room. He expressed over and over his gratitude for my care. For sixteen hours before his death he seemed to be in the presence of a host of angels, or spirits, for he was not only motioning his hands as if timing music, but also crooning over songs and smiling as if already in heaven." This account was sent to the author, by Miss Evelyn C. Strobridge, a member of the Shaker society at Shaker Station, Hartford co., Conn.

JAMES MORRISON², son of WILLIAM (1), was b. Feb. 28, 1757, in Bridgewater, Mass. His grandson gives this fact: "Being the youngest child of his parents, he remained with his mother after her second marriage with William Strobridge, jr., of Middleboro'. When of sufficient age to be put to a trade he was apprenticed to learn the trade of house-joiner, at which he worked for several years. In 1783 he m. HANNAH GUNN of Pittsfield, Mass., and took up his residence in Blandford, Hampden co., Mass."

The land records of Hampton co. have the following:

"James Morrison, grantee:

"24,167. Joseph Stanton, of Blandford to Jas. Morrison, of B-d, 40 acres, having standing thereon a mansion house, ackn. Aug. 11, 1783; Recorded Sept. 29, 1784

"28, 449. Wm. and Sarah Strobridge, to James Morrison, of Blandford, yeoman, Part of lot No. 1. Dated Feb. 9, 1788, ackn. Feb. 6, 1789; Rec. Feb. 12, 1789.

"35,387. James Morrison, grantor.

"James Morrison of Blandford, housewright, to Solomon Noble, £117, same as 24, 167, to hold January 1, Dated Sept. 20, 1793; ackn. Sept. 20, 1793; Rec. Mch. 4, 1796."

The latter transaction is explained by what follows: In 1793 James Morrison removed with his family to Harpersfield, Delaware co., N. Y., remaining there until June 7, 1806. During this time he sold his second lot of land in Blandford. The record reads as follows: "40,352. James Morrison, of Harpersfield, Delaware co., N. Y., Joiner, to David Munroe, same as 28,449, $333.³³/₁₀₀. Dated July 1, 1799; ackn. July 1, 1799; Rec. May 20, 1802."

There is also: "42,415. James Morrison, of Harpersfield, Delaware co., N. Y., yeoman, to ——— 100 acres, part of lot No. 1. Hannah, release dower. Dated Oct. 11, 1799; ackn. Oct. 11, 1799, in Blandford; Rec. Feb. 13, 1804."

"On June 6, 1806, in company with several others, he set out with teams for the then dim and distant wilds of New Connecticut, arriving at Ashtabula co., O., after six weeks' toilsome and wearisome journey. Much of the time the company camped by the wayside in the dense forests, when night overtook them, the women and young children sleeping in the wagons, the men and boys lying under the wagons, watching the stock and keeping up the fires.

"Soon after his arrival at his destination he selected and purchased some four or five hundred acres of land in the new township of Geneva, Ashtabula co., and moved his family onto it. He then entered upon the herculean task of clearing off the heavy forest, and converting the wilderness into fruitful fields. He erected at first a temporary shelter, built of light logs or poles, and covered with the peeled bark of chestnut trees. After clearing off a few acres, he planted it to corn, and set a small orchard of fruit trees. As soon as the family were in a fair way to live, he built what was then known as a double block house. It was built of logs hewn square, the ends notched, and logs laid one upon another, and fastened together with wooden pins. This house had two rooms below, separated by a wide spaceway, while above, under the low roof, were the sleeping arrangements. The floors were of boards (which must have given the place a luxurious appearance), and there was a chimney at each end of the building.

"Furniture was scarce, and Mr. Morrison found his skill taxed to supply the urgent need of chairs, tables, bedsteads, etc. These he made from the timber cut down in clearing the land. On the bank of a small stream which ran through his farm were a number of large black-walnut trees. From one of the largest of these he split out boards, and made a table large enough for the family, consisting of the parents and nine children, to gather around, for their frugal meal. This table was a single board, oval in shape, resting on a central standard with three feet. The top could be turned up at one side and placed by the wall, and thus be out of the way when not in use. The bedsteads, chairs, and other articles of furniture were primitive in construction. Elm bark, from forest trees, served to make the bottoms of the chairs. In most of the homes of the settlers of that day, "puncheon" floors and "stick" chimneys were the prevailing style. The table above referred to was superior to most in use, and served the family for thirty years. The writer remembers with what keen appetite he used to draw up his seat to it on the occasion of a visit to grandfather's.

"The large black walnuts spoken of were cut down and split into rails to fence the farm. Such lumber as they would have made would now bring one hundred dollars or more per thousand feet.

"On one part of the farm was a numerous growth of sugar maples; huge fellows they were, and the Indians had for years resorted there every spring to make sugar. For two or three years after Mr. Morrison's settlement on the farm, they continued their annual visits, then left to return no more.

"The settlers had brought with them a few cows, sheep, oxen, and horses. For three years these animals knew not the taste of hay, being fed on grain, straw, or browse.

James Morrison was fifty years of age when he came to Ohio, and when planting his fruit orchard, said he should not live to eat of the fruit, but his sons and grandchildren might, and it was for them he was planting. He lived until many of the trees had blossomed, borne fruit year after year, and died.

"He gave to each of his sons, James, Jr., William, Strobridge, and Riley, a tract of land, reserving to himself the old home on which the youngest son Julius was to reside and care for him and his wife in their declining years. The elder sons soon parted with their land and went to other homes, and early in the forties the old home was sold and Mr. Morrison went to Albion, Pa., to reside with his son, Riley, while Julius, the youngest son removed to southern Indiana.

"In person James Morrison was of stocky, stout frame, about five feet eight or nine inches in height. In character, strong and resolute, of unflinching courage, morally, as well as physically. Of a jovial, sunny disposition, fond of fun and sport, he was a welcome guest everywhere.

"At the time of coming to Ohio, Mr. Morrison was inclined to the Universalist belief, but about 1816, under the preaching of itinerant Methodists, he and several of his family were converted, and in 1817 a Methodist church was organized at his house, with thirteen members, nine of whom were members of, or connected with, his family, and for years the meetings were held at his house. For several years he received a pension from the government for service in the army of the Revolution. He d. at Albion, Pa., Oct. 18, 1854, at the ripe age of 97 yrs. 7 mos. 18 days.

"He retained his faculties nearly to the end of his long life. He was never sick nor under a doctor's care until a short time before his death. His wife was in feeble health for several years, and many years before preceded him to the spirit land, dying June 26, 1834. Their remains repose side by side on a part of what was their original purchase in Geneva, Ashtabula co., O." (Contributed by Hon. H. L. Morrison.)

JOHN MORRISON³, son of WILLIAM (2), was b. Mch. 3, 1784, in Middleborough, Mass. In 1805 his parents rem. to Farmington, Me. His son relates the following:

“It being found that in moving it would be necessary to stay over the Sabbath at some point of the journey, it was decided that Boston should be the place, in order that the family might have a chance to listen to some of the able preachers there. When Sunday morning arrived the mother was unable to go to meeting, and John went by himself to hear the noted Universalist, Balfour. What he heard set him to thinking, and after that he plied his mother so persistently with questions regarding her theology that it would seem they resulted in opening her eyes, for she became as strong a Universalist as her son, many years before her death. His doctrine was, ‘Prove all things, hold fast that which is good.’” He m. June 24, 1813, SARAH TUFTS, who was b. Aug. 29, 1797; d. Jan. 13, 1852, æ. 55. He d. Mch. 30, 1857, æ. 73.

SALLY MORRISON³, dau. of ALEXANDER (4), m. GEORGE WILSON, probably in Blandford, Mass. She did not rem. to Ohio with her father's family; was living in 1808 in Albany, N. Y.; in 1817 at Windsor, N. Y., and in 1822 at Coxsackie on the Hudson; was then thinking of moving to Ohio, and doubtless did so. Mr. Wilson was a trader, and apparently possessed a good education.

A letter written by Mrs. Wilson to her brother Alexander, after his wife's death, is given below.

WINDSOR, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1817.

DEAR BROTHER:

it is a long time since I have attempted to write you. Time has not weaned my affection from you, in the dispensation of divine providence in removing your partner, you must go to him. she cannot return to you, has she left any evidence behind that she was prepared to meet her God, if she was she would not return for ten thousand such Worlds as this. it is of little consequence when we are summoned to Depart, if we are prepared, it is of infinite importance that we should seriously inquire into our own situation, have we made our peace with God, have excepted of Christ as he is offerd to us in the gospel, if not I beg you to set about it immediately, we have no promes of to morrow. My Dear you know not how anxious I feel for your eternal welfare. I rejoice in your worldly prosperity, but I think it would be more satisfactory to me to hear that you enjoyed religion the importance of the subject as I view it must plead in excuse for the freedom that I have taken at this time not knowing that I shall ever have another opportunity, life is uncertain. I should be highly pleased to except of your invitation to go to the westward, the idea of enjoying your society a gain in the world is what I have almost dispared of, yet I find it to be very gratifying to my heart to anticipate a meeting. I must leave the event with the all-wise govonor of the unverse. May we be prepared to meet in the realms of bliss is the prayer of your affectionate sister.

SALLY WILSON.

In Mr. Wilson's letter, written in 1822, he speaks of his "oldest daughter" and "two youngest sons," but the names of two children only have been furnished.

ALEXANDER MORRISON, JR.³, son of ALEXANDER (4), was b. Sept. 27, 1780, at some place in New England, where is not known. The land records of Hampden co., Mass. show that Alexander Morrison, and Alexander Morrison, Jr., yeomen, sold a tract of land in Blandford, Mass., Feb. 18, 1803, for $1,716.00; also that Alexander Morrison, Jr., sold a lot of land in Blandford, Aug. 24, 1803, for $833.33, being a part of a lot of 50 acres which his father bought of Reuben Gunn of Blandford, Nov. 11, 1791.

He was one of the advance party of the land company who settled the town of Worthington, O., in 1803. (See family 7 for a detailed account).

In the division of the company's land, nine lots were apportioned to Alexander Morrison, Jr.

Mr. Morrison m. July 4, 1806, SALLY, dau. of Levi and Sarah (Phelps) BUTTLES.* She was b. May 9, 1789. Mr. Morrison appears to have had a good education, and was a successful merchant. In 1814 he was appointed associate judge. One account of him states that he was a surveyor. He is said to have been a remarkably fine-looking man, tall and commanding in appearance.

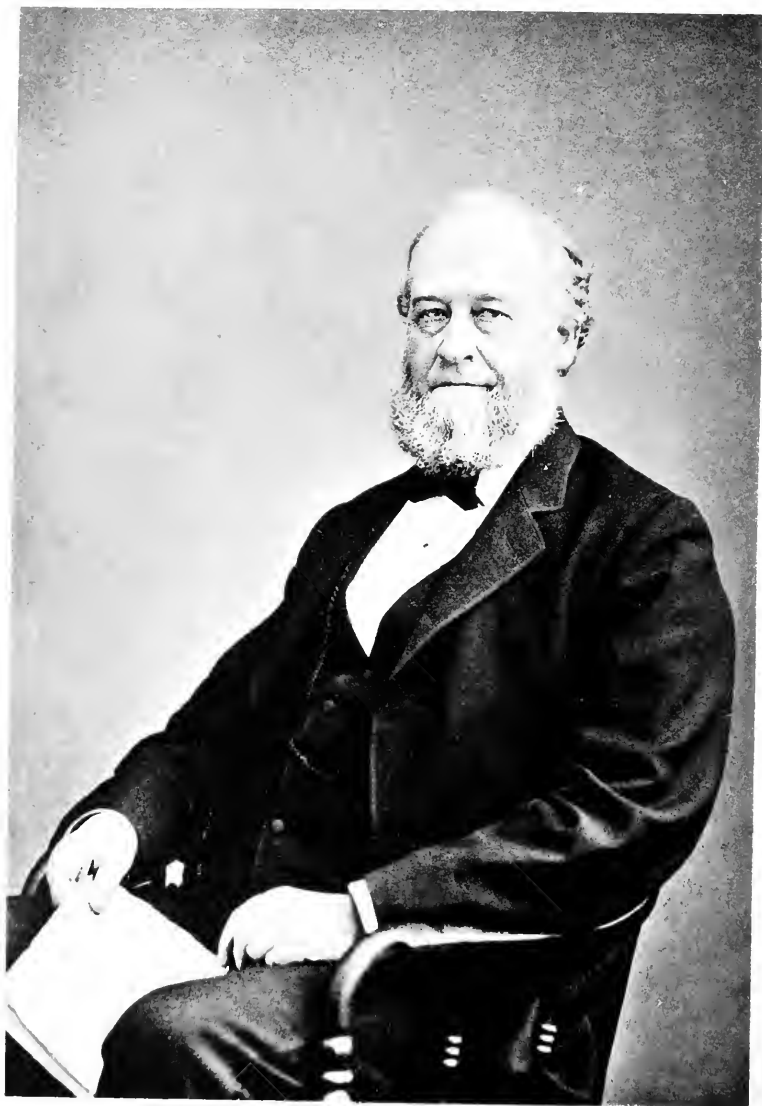

The following record of his death, and his wife's, was found among the effects of his son Justin :

“Alxr Morrison departed this life August 2nd 1821 after an illness of (nervous coruptans) 13 days”

“Mrs Sally Morrison departed this life June the 6th 1817 Aged 28 years & 28 days after a lingering and distressing sickness of 15 months which she bore with an uncommon degree of Patience and Fortitude and closed the solemn scene of this mortal life in a manner which was truly affecting, and evinced in the minds of those who witnessed her departure a lively hope that she had gone to receive the reward of a well spent life. She had lived in a married state Ten years 11 months and 2 days”

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were buried at Urbana, O., where a monument was erected to their memory by their daughter, Mrs. Sophronia Jeffords. It is said that an error was made in the inscription on the monument, giving 1820 instead of 1821 as the year of Mr. Morrison's death.

* Levi Buttles was a member of the land company that settled Worthington, O. He and his family went to Worthington in 1804, from Saybrook, Conn. Mrs. Buttles died in Columbus, O., July, 1844. The family name is the same as that spelled Buttolph.

My grandmother [Mrs. Levi Buttles, with whom these orphaned children lived after the death of their parents] gave her consent. Darwin went, remained three years with them, came back to Worthington and remained a short time, then emigrated to Illinois, married there, and had a family, how many children I do not know; then, like many other Americans, 'up stakes,' and moved West where he soon d."
- 132 iv. ALEXANDER, b. Dec. 1, 1814; he was very fond of study, and after leaving college studied law and was admitted to the bar, but as his health was not strong, physicians advised him to give up the idea of practising, and live as much as possible in the open air. He was for some years an extensive manufacturer of pottery in Philadelphia. He was singularly modest and retiring; only those who worked close beside him had any idea of the sweetness of his disposition, his unselfish affection, and the purity of his life. He loved his home, his friends, and his books, caring little for general society, but enjoyed greatly having his friends in his own home, where every one who saw him admired and loved him. I think his mother must have been a lovely character, for to the last day of his life he had such deep respect for woman. He was very fond of Shakespeare. How often I have heard him repeat pages of it. "His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man.'" (From a letter of Mrs. Emily (Swift) Morrison.) Mr. Morrison was m. at Columbus, O., Nov. 18, 1852, to EMILY ABIAH, dau. of Dr. Isaac and Eliza (Thompson) SWIFT* of Ravenna, O., where she was b. Sept. 21, 1829. Like his father (and the Morrisons generally) Mr. Morrison was tall and well-proportioned; an unusually fine-looking man. He d. at Philadelphia, Sept. 22, 1881, of apoplexy. HENRY LAWTON MORRISON⁴, son of JAMES, JR. (32), was b. Aug. 12, 1820, in Geneva, Ashtabula co., O. His mother dying at the hour of his birth, he was given to an uncle by the name of Lawton, whose wife, Sarah, was a sister of his father. From these relatives he received all the love and care bestowed by the kindest parents, never knowing any difference. In their quiet, humble home he grew to boyhood with such advantages of schooling as the common schools of that day afforded. At the age of 15 years his uncle sold his farm, and Henry L. entered a country store as clerk and began the battle of life for himself in the little village of Ashtabula. Here has always been his home. Oct. 7, 1846, he m. NANCY PAMELIA CASTLE. He has been a resident of Ashtabula fifty-five years. After several years as clerk he was admitted partner in 1848. REV. W. H. MORRISON⁵, son of WILLIAM (67), was b. Nov. 4, 1850, at Farmington, Me.; graduated, 1878, at the Divinity school, Tufts college; m. June 24, 1879, ALICE BICKFORD of Gloucester, Mass., b. July 14, 1856; is now (1890) settled over the Universalist society at Manchester, N. H. The following is from the Manchester Patriot:

"The Amoskeag Veterans are fortunate in the selection of their chaplain the coming year (1890). Rev. W. H. Morrison is the most popular clergyman in Manchester to-day, and that as much because of his fearlessness and independence in discussing the living problems and issues of the day, as of his charming personality. Preachers who live in the present, with their faces turned toward the future rather than the misty past, are the preachers who command the attention and gain the confidence and regard of the people in this progressive age."

The Christian Leader (Universalist) has the following report of a recent sermon of Mr. Morrison:

"At the grove meeting of Universalists, held at Lyndonville, Vt., Aug., 1891, Rev. W. H. Morrison of Manchester, N. H., delivered a sermon on the subject 'Why am I a Universalist?' taking for his text, Isaiah xlv: 23, 'I have sworn by myself, the word has gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, that unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.'

"Mr. Morrison likened this unto a bond issued by God and endorsed by Jesus Christ, John the Baptist, Sts. Paul and Peter, quoting Scripture to prove them endorsers. He claimed God had the power, the means, and the desire to redeem that bond at face value, and would do so. Said some wanted to discount from ten to ninety per cent. Speaker said when an individual gave a bond and had plenty of means to redeem it, and a known disposition to do so, it was considered a sound business transaction to pay par value for the bond, and as a business transaction it was safe to take God's bond; it was worth its face value. The speaker used many other apt illustrations and convincing arguments in his line of thought, leaving no room for doubt in the minds of his hearers that he believed in the universal salvation of men, that it was God's promise that all should be brought to him, and that he was able and willing to make that promise good. Mr. Morrison is a very interesting speaker, and the large audience gave him the closest attention."

PREFATORY NOTE

ANY one interested to know why the author, who, not long since, held that the Strobridges and Strawbridges of America were of Scotch origin has changed her views on this point will find the explanation in the Preface to this work. They will also find in the Introduction, especially that portion of it taken from the address of Doctor McIntosh, at the Scotch-Irish congress, held at Pittsburg, Pa., in May, 1890, many interesting facts relating to the Scotch, English, Huguenot and Quaker colonists of the Province of Ulster, Ireland, among whom, in all probability, were the ancestors of many belonging to the present generation of Strobridges and Strawbridges.

How many emigrants of the Strawbridge name have settled in America has not been ascertained; there were certainly several. While it seems quite likely that some of these emigrants came directly from England, it is known that others came from Ireland, and it is highly probable that most did so. The meagre knowledge of these emigrants possessed by their descendants to-day, renders the work of investigation exceedingly difficult, and wellnigh precludes the possibility of establishing connections, excepting in one or two instances.

The author has spared no pains in her efforts to make this portion of her book satisfactory, and if she has failed to do so, the cause must be attributed to the difficulties in the way.

ARMS.

In Burke's "General Armory," published in London in 1878, are found descriptions of the Trobridge, Trowbridge, and Strobridge arms,* but no mention of any Strawbridge arms, from which it may be inferred that no family bearing this surname has ever owned a coat-of-arms. The fact may also suggest that the other ways of spelling the name are more ancient. Is it not possible that the present name, Strawbridge, is a corruption of Strobridge? May there not have been at some time a fashion of giving the short sound to the o in the name Strobridge? In that case, how easily the change in spelling from Strob-ridge to Straw-bridge would follow.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Especial thanks are due to HON. J. A. STROWBRIDGE of Portland, Ore., for a timely donation which has made possible researches and investigations which could not have been prosecuted without such assistance; MRS. STROWBRIDGE has also furnished much valuable information; MR. J. C. STRAWBRIDGE of Philadelphia, has contributed both money and material for the family history. Among others who have been both cordial and helpful, may be mentioned, WILLIAM C. STRAWBRIDGE, ESQ., of Philadelphia; JOSEPH R. STRAWBRIDGE of York, Pa., MRS. G. R. IRISH of Iowa City, Ia.; MR. CHARLES HEBER STRAWBRIDGE of Chicago, and MRS. LIZZIE GREGG of Chester, Ind. Others have also aided more or less, and all have the sincere thanks of

THE AUTHOR.

STRAWBRIDGE AND STROWBRIDGE FAMILIES

SECTION I.

JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE of Westwood, Md., is the first of the name in America of whom any account has been found.

In the land records at Baltimore, liber R. M., No. H. S., folio 237, is recorded a bond from Thomas Scudamore to JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE, carpenter, for the conveyance of "Westwood," on Back river, containing 700 acres, dated Aug. 2, 1687.

A note, or partial account of the administration of JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE, is found in Admn. Accts., No. 2, folio 213.

In Will Book, No. 1, folio 62, is found the will of SARAH STRAWBRIDGE, widow, "executrix" of Joseph Strawbridge. She only mentions the following children by name, and seems to have been married twice. Bequests: "To MARY HARDING, I gold ring; to SUSANNA STRAWBRIDGE, I gold ring and I cow and calf."

SAMUEL HARDING, another child, is also mentioned, and she wishes all her children to be kept at her plantation, on Back river, until they are of age. Nicholas Heale is named as executor, and the will is probated Apr. 22, 1699. Signed,

"SARAH S ^{her}M STRAWBIDGE."

An account of Nicholas Heale, administrator of her estate, is given in Admn. Accts., No. 1, folio 7.

Should this work come to the notice of any descendant of Joseph and Sarah Strawbridge, the author hopes that he or she will at once communicate with her. It is not impossible that some of the Strawbridges mentioned in this work are descendants of Joseph, of "Westwood," Md.

SECTION II.

REV. THOMAS STRAWBRIDGE of Carndonagh, Co. Donegal, Ire., 1714 to 1762, and his descendants in Ireland and America.*

NOTE. Early in 1889 the author of this work wrote to Ireland in the hope of learning something about her own Strobridge ancestors from records there—she knew only that her ancestors came from “Donagh,” Ireland. Below will be found the reply to her letter, from which it will be seen that the place from which it was written was, and is still called “Donagh,” and in all probability the writer of the letter is settled over the very church from which the author’s ancestors, William and Margaret (Henry) Strobridge, received, in 1722, their letters of dismissal to an American church.

At first it seemed as though it might be possible to trace the relationship which undoubtedly existed between William Strobridge and Rev. Thomas Strawbridge of Carndonagh, but the idea had to be abandoned for lack of data.—M. S. P. G.

LETTER OF REV. ROBERT MORRISON.

“CARNDONAGH MANSE, Co. Donegal, April 10, 1889.

“DEAR MADAM:

“As far as I can find out, Thomas Strawbridge came from Belfast, as an Irish-speaking missionary, to Innishowen, the district from Londonderry to Malin Head, between Loughs Foyle and Swilly—in the year 1714—which position he held for seven years when he received a call from this, Donagh, congregation, which occupies the centre of Innishowen. Here he was ordained in 1721, and died here in April, 1762, after a ministry of over forty years.

“Rev. Thomas Strawbridge, Oct. 3, 1721, to April 2, 1762; died.

“Rev. Robert Scott, ordained Nov. 22, 1777, to Oct. 1, 1803; died.

“Rev. Reuben Rogers, ordained Sept. 27, 1808, to Feb. 12, 1846.

“These three ministers are given as somewhat associated in various ways.

“Rev. Thomas Strawbridge lived at Rockmount, which in his day was a manse, with four acres Irish land attached. At his death, the manse and farm went to his family, who occupied it until Thomas Strawbridge, grandson of Rev. Thomas, sold it to Rev. Reuben Rogers in 1810, when he and his family emigrated to America. Mrs. Porter, a daughter of Mr. Rogers (a lady 76 yrs. of age) still occupies it.

"The father of Thomas, jr., was probably Jack (?) or Thomas. At any rate he succeeded well, and for Thomas, jr., built at Rockmount, about 1785, a fine house, leaving the old manse to his (Thomas') mother and sisters.

"These sisters were three in number, one married Rev. Robert Scott of Carndonagh. When Thomas emigrated, 1810, there were left here his two unmarried sisters, Margery and Jennie, and Mrs. Scott's family.

"Margery and Jennie lived on at Rockmount with Rev. Reuben Rogers for a year or two, but finally Jennie went to lodgings in Carndonagh where she died 1820. Margery went to live with her niece, daughter of Mrs. Scott, who had married Rev. Dr. Alexander, Covenanting minister, Belfast. Rev. Robert Scott had two daughters, one married to Rev. Dr. Alexander, the other to Mr. James Stevenson of Toberneil, near Raphoe. After Mr. Stevenson's death, Mrs. Stevenson, her four sons and two daughters, emigrated to America, about thirty years ago, and settled at Springfield, Ill.

"Rev. Dr. Alexander had two sons and one daughter, one was Rev. Jacob Alexander of Edinburgh, Scotland; the other, Rev. Robert Scott Alexander of Edinburgh, Scotland. The daughter married in Belfast.

"J. Scott Alexander, 23 Magdala Crescent, Edinburgh, Scotland, ordained St. David's church, 1844.*

"With best wishes, yours sincerely,

"ROBERT MORRISON.

"P. S. I may add that I lodged with Mrs. Porter two years since I came here, in the house built by Mr. Strawbridge. Mrs. Porter is 76, and knows more about the Strawbridges than most people in this locality."

From the foregoing letter and a record obtained from Powers' "Early Settlers of Sangamon Co., Il.," by Mr. Charles Heber Strawbridge of Chicago, the following genealogy has been arranged:

REV. THOMAS STRAWBRIDGE¹, of English extraction, is traced to Belfast, Ire., thence to Carndonagh (or Donagh), Co. Donegal, Ire., where he lived from 1714 to 1762, as a minister of the Presbyterian denomination; was ordained Oct. 3, 1721, and d. Apr. 2, 1762. His manse was called Rockmount, and went to his family at his death.

SECOND GENERATION.

— STRAWBRIDGE², son of REV. THOMAS (1). [By the usual mode of drawing inferences, this son of Rev. Thomas should have been Thomas, but our informant was not able to say, although the son's name is given as Thomas, Jr.]

THOMAS STRAWBRIDGE, JR.³, grandson* of REV. THOMAS (1), was b. Mch. 13, 1755 (in the Parish of Carndonagh, undoubtedly) Co. Donegal, Ire.; d. Sept. 24, 1834, in Sangamon co., Ill. He m. JANE MITCHELL, who was b. in Ballykelly, Co. Derry, Ire. Her mother's maiden name was Strawbridge, a second cousin to her father.

[This account which was taken from Powers' "Early Settlers of Sangamon Co., Ill.," published 1876, says: "The Strawbridge, family was of English origin."] Mrs. Jane (Mitchell) Strawbridge d. in Co. Donegal in 1809; and in 1810 Mr. Strawbridge, with his children, came to America, landing in Baltimore, May, 1810. They went to Northumberland co., Pa.† In the fall of 1811 they moved to that part of Champaign co. which is now Clark co., O., thence to Sangamon co., Ill., arriving Oct., 1823, in what is now Fancy Creek township, near Cantrall.

Thomas Strawbridge manse), about 1785, a fine house, leaving the old manse to his (Thomas') mother and sisters" (Mrs. Scott, Margery and Jennie Strawbridge).—Letter of Rev. Robert Morrison.

† There was at this time quite a colony of Strawbridges in what was formerly Northumberland co., Pa. Is it not possible, or rather probable, that Thomas Strawbridge went to Northumberland co., Pa., because he had relatives there? This is but a straw, to be sure, but such slight indications often lead to important results.

Since the above was written the fact has been established that Thomas Strawbridge was related to the Northumberland co. family.

SECTION III.

Chester County (Pennsylvania) Branch.

Doubtless the first of the Strawbridge name to settle in Chester co., Pa., was JAMES, who had conveyed to him by William Peters and Richard Hockley, attorneys for Christiana and Gulielma Penn, on Jan. 18, 1759, "a certain piece of land situate on Elk River, Chester county, part of a tract of 5000 acres, and of Fagg's Manor." (Land Records of Chester co., Pa.)

His wife's name was Margaret, and it is probably true, as some of their descendants claim, that they emigrated from the north of Ireland, although of English ancestry more or less remote. James Strawbridge was undoubtedly related to, perhaps a brother of, Rev. Thomas Strawbridge of Section II.*

William C. Strawbridge, Esq., of Philadelphia, a descendant of James and Margaret Strawbridge, and the present owner of the property above referred to, gives an account of the manner in which it descended from the Penn family, as follows:

"May 16, 1737, letters-patent, John Penn, Thomas Penn, Richard Penn, Proprietors and Governors of the province of Pennsylvania to Letitia Aubrey.

"July 20, 1744, will of Letitia Aubrey, devising said land to William Penn, her nephew, for his life, and afterwards to Christiana Gulielma Penn. William Penn survived Letitia Aubrey, but died in the lifetime of Christiana Gulielma Penn, whereby Christiana became seized in her own right of the tract of land, consisting of 5000 acres, which was known as Fagg's Manor.

"March 5, 1755, letter of attorney granted by Christiana Gulielma Penn to William Peters and Richard Hockley of Philadelphia.

"January 18, 1739, deed of Christiana Gulielma Penn by her

* Mr. Thomas Strawbridge of Ottawa, Kan., a descendant of Rev. Thomas Strawbridge, has informed the author that Dr. James Strawbridge of Danville, Pa., a cousin (?) of his father, visited at his father's some years ago. As Doctor Strawbridge was himself a descendant of James, the Chester co. settler, the connection seems to be established.

Attorneys, William Peters and Richard Hockley, conveying a piece of said land to JAMES STRAWBRIDGE."*

The names of the children of James and Margaret Strawbridge, as given by William C. Strawbridge, Esq., are as follows:

CHILDREN.

- 2* i. JOSEPH².
 3* ii. CHRISTIANA.
 4* iii. THOMAS, m. MARGARET MONTGOMERY.
 5 iv. MARY. (Did she marry a Mitchell? Her sister Christiana mentions in her will her "loving neice, Christiana Mitchell," and nephew James S. Mitchell-).
 6* v. JAMES, m. MARGARET JOHNSON.

JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE², son of JAMES (1). The land records of Chester co., Pa. (Deed Book W, p. 315), show that by a deed dated Apr. 28, 1764, James Strawbridge and Margaret, his wife, of Londonderry township, Chester co., Pa., conveyed to their son, Joseph Strawbridge, of the same place, a lot of land containing one hundred and sixty acres, it being a part of the tract purchased by James Strawbridge, Jan. 18, 1759.

By another deed, dated Aug. 10, 1782 (Deed Book W, p. 277), he received from John Finney and wife forty-two acres in Londonderry.

And by a third deed, dated June 22, 1786, given by Peter Gaskill et al., attorneys, he received one hundred and twelve acres of land situate in John Fagg's "Manner," Chester co., Pa. (Deed Book Q, p. 409). He d. unm. and intestate, previous to Jan., 1814, when a petition was presented by James Strawbridge in the Orphan's court, Chester co., Pa., praying the court to make partition of the real estate. The jury found that the estate could not be divided, and it was adjudicated to James Strawbridge, he having consented to take it. (W. C. Strawbridge, Esq.)

The land conveyed to Joseph Strawbridge by John Finney, Aug. 10, 1782, is included in the estate owned in Penn township (formerly Londonderry) by W. C. Strawbridge, Esq., and descended from the Penn family as follows:

"April 3, 1740, letter of attorney, Letitia Aubrey to James Logan and William Logan, attorneys, in fact, to patent, locate, and convey her land in Pennsylvania.

* Mr. William C. Strawbridge informs us that he has seen old deeds relating to his property in Penn township (formerly Londonderry), Chester co., Pa., which were signed "Strobridge." This may be considered proof positive that Strobridge and Strawbridge are identical.

"Feb. 5, 1745, deed of Letitia Aubrey by her attorneys, in fact, James Logan and William Logan to Robert Brown.

"Sept. 30, 1765, deed of Robert Brown to William Kerr.

"Aug. 26, 1775, deed of William Kerr and wife to John Finney.

"Aug. 10, 1782, deed of John Finney and wife to Joseph Strawbridge."

CHRISTIANA (OR CHRISTIAN, OR CHRISTIANN) STRAWBRIDGE², dau. of JAMES (1), left the appended will:

WILL OF CHRISTIANN STRAWBRIDGE.

"First, I nominate my trusty friend Walter Finney and my affectionate Nephew Joseph Strawbridge Executors of this my last will.

"Item I devise and bequeath unto my affectionate loving Neice Christiana Mitchell the sum of $532.

"Item I devise and bequeath to my Nephew James S. Mitchell the sum of $266.

"Item I devise and bequeath to my loving neice Christiana Montgomery the sum of $200.

"Item I devise and bequeath to my loving neice Christiann Giffin $200.*

"Item I give and devise to my affectionate Nephew Joseph Strawbridge $2000—, eight day clock, all my tables chairs feather beds and bedding, one looking glass with all house and kitchen furniture which is my property.

"My reason for leaving my Nephew Joseph Strawbridge so much more than my other legatees is this, he lived with his uncle Joseph Strawbridge now deceased intestate who always said he would leave him in full possession of the farm he lives on with the buildings. My desire now is to enable him to purchase it. should there be any over plus money more than will pay the Legacies herein specified it is my will that it be equally divided between my brother James Strawbridge's three Sons Share and Share alike.

"Dated Oct 1, 1814.

"Before signing and sealing I do make this codicil and it is my will that my Nephew Joseph Strawbridge shall have my Mulatto Girl named Hannah until she is 25 years of age at which time it is my will she shall be free.

"Probated Aug 22, 1822."

THOMAS STRAWBRIDGE², son of JAMES (1), tanner, and wife, MARGARET (Montgomery), of Londonderry township, Chester co., Pa., by an indenture dated Apr. 27, 1764, granted and conveyed to James Strawbridge a certain piece of land in Londonderry.

* This was evidently her grandneice, a granddaughter of her brother Thomas, and the bequest which precedes it was perhaps to another grandneice and namesake, although she had a neice named Christiana married to Daniel Montgomery.

A letter of attorney from Thomas Strawbridge, tanner, of Tarbit, Northumberland co., Pa., to James Strawbridge and Dr. Francis Alizon of Chester co., Pa., dated May 10, 1785, is recorded in "letter of Attorney Book" May 16, 1785.

Thomas Strawbridge m. MARGARET MONTGOMERY, who was b. in Delaware, was brought up and educated in the family of an aunt in Philadelphia. She was a woman of remarkable intellectual endowments; aided and encouraged her husband in every way during the war (Revolutionary); carried on the work of a large farm herself, most of the proceeds of which were contributed to the support of families of soldiers who were in the army. During the terrible winter at Valley Forge once every week she rode on horseback across Chester co., carrying on the saddle behind her a bundle of clothing, stockings, etc., woven and spun from the wool cut from sheep raised on her own farm, spun and knit by the wives and daughters of men (then in service, and hired by her for that purpose) at night by the light of pine knots, which she herself distributed to the soldiers. There she met her husband whom she had not seen for many months, the day before the crossing of the Delaware, to capture the Hessians at Trenton.

She lived to the age of 99 yrs. and 10 mos., retaining her faculties until within a few days of her death, and died without having had a day's sickness in 80 years. Mrs. Strawbridge was a sister of Gen. William Montgomery of the Continental Army, who founded the town of Danville, Pa., and res. there at the beginning of the Revolutionary war. He was colonel of a regiment which he commanded at the battles at Brooklyn.

Thomas Strawbridge was appointed captain of militia by the Committee of Safety, in Mch., 1775. In 1776 was lieutenant-colonel of the 2d regt. of Chester co. militia. In Sept., 1776, was a member of the first assembly to form a State Constitution. In 1777 his name appears as president of the Board of Appeal, before whom all persons drafted for the army had to appear to see if they were fit to enter the army. Afterward there appeared among his papers accounts for large quantities of arms, munition, etc., purchased by Colonel Thomas Strawbridge for the army, and for most of which he had given his own personal obligations, which nearly ruined him financially, as he was compelled to pay for them and the government could only pay him in Continental money, which at the close of the war was worthless.

Just before the close of the war he removed from Chester co. to what is now Montour co., then included in the county of Northumberland, Pa., and in 1785 was presiding judge of the courts. He was succeeded a year or two later by his brother-in-law, Gen. William Montgomery.*

The following copy of Mrs. Margaret Strawbridge's will was obtained of the County Recorder :

“WILL OF MARGARET STRAWBRIDGE LATE OF LIBERTY TOWNSHIP DECEASED.

“In the name of God Amen. I Margaret Strawbridge of Liberty township Columbia County and State of Pennsylvania, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do make, ordain and publish this my last Will and testament in manner and form following, that is to say. I give and bequeath, two hundred and Sixty seven dollars unto the United Foreign Missionary Society to be paid by my Executor in one year after my decease with interest from that date.

“I give and bequeath unto my Grand daughters Eleanor Giffen and Martha McCormick each two hundred dollars to be paid to them one year after decease,

“I will and bequeath unto William Montgomery the son of my Grand daughter Christinna† (formerly Christianna Giffen) the sum of two hundred dollars to be put out to interest for him one year after my decease, so that he may receive both principal and interest when he arrives at lawful age,

“But if the said William Montgomery shall die before arriving at lawful age, then. I will and bequeath the aforesaid two hundred dollars to a religious use in the Presbyterian Church, as my executor shall direct.

“I give and bequeath unto my grand daughter, Margaret Strawbridge my bed and bedding, Chest of drawers, tea spoons and and other little matters in the house.

“I give and bequeath to my Grand son, Thomas Strawbridge my desk, clock, and Watch.

“I give and bequeath to my grand Children, the sons and daughters of my son James Strawbridge whose names here follow, to wit : Margaret, Ann, Thomas, James Samuel, and Mary, Each, one hundred dollars.

“All the residue and remainder of my estate I bequeath to my son James Strawbridge my daughter Christianna Montgomery and the heirs of my daughter Mary Giffen to be equally divided among them the heirs of my daughter Mary Giffen to get one Share.

“Lastly I nominate, Constitute and appoint my Son James Strawbridge sole Executor of this my last will and testament.

“In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this thirteenth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty two.

MARGARET STRAWBRIDGE [SEAL.]

“Signed Sealed and delivered to be the last will and testament of Margaret Strawbridge in the presence of us who here signed our names hereunto as witnesses in the presence of the testator

“MARGARET SIMONTON

“THOMAS CANDOR

“P. S. My will is that Elenor and Martha Giffens that was, receive but one hundred instead of two hundred dollars Margaret Strobride the 13 of September 1837. My poore hand write no more.

“Probated May 10th 1842, JAMES STRAWBRIDGE, Executor.”

* The foregoing account was prepared by the late Dr. James D. Strawbridge of Danville, Pa., a grandson of Col. Thomas Strawbridge, in response to a request from the author, who received it after his death. As will be seen, it is unfinished.

JAMES STRAWBRIDGE³, son of JAMES (6), m. MARY OLDEN. In the records of Columbia co., Pa., it is noted that James Strawbridge was chosen in 1815, to administer the estate of Philip Strawbridge, deceased. It seems more than probable that he was the same James whose name heads this paragraph, and also that he was a relative of the man whose estate he settled. Allowing these two presumptions it follows that there was a relationship between the Strawbridge families of Chester and Columbia cos., Pa., a point which the author would be glad to see established. [The author kindly invites correction if she has erred in her conclusions.]

The following excerpts from the Columbia co. records undoubtedly refer to members of the family of James (6):

"Letters of Admin. granted to John Shearer, 1848, on estate of JAMES STRAWBRIDGE, JR., of Derry township, Col. co., Pa., wife's name MARY."

"Feb. 16, 1824, MARY STRAWBRIDGE gave deeds to Hugh Allen, Jesse Fennton, MARY B. STRAWBRIDGE.

"Same date, Thos. Moorehead, Jos. Hutchison, JAMES STRAWBRIDGE, MARY STRAWBRIDGE, Robert Templeton est. to MARY B. STRAWBRIDGE."

"Mary B. Strawbridge late of Warren co., Ill., letters de bonis non were granted on the 9th day of January, 1844, unto Eli Wilson of Danville. She probably died in Illinois, and letters of Admin. were originally granted in this county (Columbia) on the 18th day of May, 1843, to Samuel Wilson. She formerly lived in Derry township, Col. co., Pa., and the records say that the principal part of her goods and chattels and estate were in Derry twp."

The mansion house in which he was b. and lived, and the two hundred acres attached thereto, have been in the family ever since they were deeded by the Penn family, and are now (1889) owned by W. C. He received his early education at the West Chester Military academy, whence he graduated first in his class. He afterwards attended the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute at Troy, N. Y., from which he graduated in mechanical and metallurgical engineering, chemistry, and electricity with the second honors of his class. He then studied law in the office of ex-Judge F. Carroll Brewster, Philadelphia, and during the attorney-generalship of that gentleman was his assistant. He then became associated with George Harding of that city, in the practice of patent law, and subsequently entered into his present partnership with J. Bonsall Taylor, in the practice of that branch of the profession, and in the soliciting of American and foreign patents. His education, experience, and ability, and the large number of patent cases in which he has been engaged, have placed him in the very front rank of this branch of his profession. He was appointed by the government assistant attorney-general of the United States, a few years since, in the case brought by it against the American Bell Telephone co., for the cancellation of the patents on telephones granted to Alexander Graham Bell.

SECTION IV.

Strowbridges or Strawbridges of Northumberland County, Pennsylvania.

Besides Thomas Strawbridge of the preceding section, who is known to have been a member of the Chester co. family, there were several others of the name in that portion of Northumberland co., Pa., which is now known as Columbia co., and, without much doubt, all the persons of the name in that section of Pennsylvania were related.

From Mrs. Mary H. (Bodman) Strowbridge have been received most of the records of the descendants of Justus Strawbridge, as the public records spell his surname, though according to Mrs. Strowbridge the name was originally Strowbridge, but on account of an error in some document, the owner or owners of it afterward adopted the error rather than risk losing their title to certain property. A portion of the descendants of Justus Strawbridge afterward returned to the older mode of spelling, particularly the branch of the family now living in Oregon, and of which Mrs. Strowbridge referred to is a member.

Mrs. Strowbridge states that there were three brothers, William, Philip, and Justus Strowbridge, who emigrated from Scotland, and it is found that they all died in Northumberland co., Pa. It is hardly likely that they came from Scotland, but rather from the North of Ireland. The little that is known of William and Philip Strawbridge was obtained from the records of Columbia co., Pa., and is as follows :

1. "WILLIAM STRAWBRIDGE d. 1832; letters of admin. were granted on his estate to John M. Reynolds; his widow's name was Mary."

2. "PHILIP STRAWBRIDGE d. in 1815, probably; letters of administration were granted that year to James Strawbridge."

[It seems more than probable that this James Strawbridge who administered the estate of Philip was a relative, and to the author, who has studied the matter carefully, it appears exceedingly likely that the said James was the son of James and Margaret (Johnson) Strawbridge of Londonderry, Chester co., Pa., and brother to Thomas of Turbit, Northumberland, now Columbia co., Pa.]

3. JUSTUS STRAWBRIDGE, m. SUSANNAH MAUS. Letters of administration granted to Joseph Mans on his estate in 1840; widow's name, Elizabeth, from which it appears he m. a second wife.

The records of Columbia co., Pa., show that Ann Eliza Strawbridge, at her residence, Mahoning township, Columbia co., gave a deed dated Mch. 9, 1830, to Philip Strawbridge of same place. Another deed from Shobel Strawbridge and wife of Union township, Union co., Pa., to Philip Strawbridge of Mahoning, Pa., is dated Apr. 10, 1830. Still another deed from George F. H. Strawbridge of Reading, Berks co., Pa., to Philip Strawbridge, is dated Apr. 1, 1830. A fourth deed from Joseph Strawbridge of Turbut township, Northumberland co., Pa., to Philip Strawbridge of Mahoning township, is dated Apr. 1, 1831.

On Apr. 10, 1830, they were of Union township, Union co., Pa., when they gave a deed to Philip Strawbridge of Mahoning township, Columbia co., Pa., which is recorded in the Columbia co. records at Bloomsburg, Pa. There, also, is found recorded that letters of administration were granted, 1814, on the estate of Shobel Strawbridge. Mrs. Mary B. Strawbridge's account says that Shobel Strawbridge lived many years in Cincinnati, O., and that he was a Methodist minister. The following was obtained from the records of Columbia co., Pa.:

"SHOBEL STRAWBRIDGE late of Valley township Col Co. Pa. about 1841. The widow renounced her right in these words, 'Know all men by these presents, that Whereas: Shobel Strawbridge late a resident in the City of Cincinnati County of Hamilton and State of Ohio, has recently departed this life in Columbia County, in the state of Penna, Intestate leaving myself as his late wife but now widow (and several minor children as his only lawful heirs) and whereas my said husband was entitled amongst other dividends of a personal character to a distributable share of the personal estate of his father Justus Strawbridge and his brother Geo Strawbridge late of the said County of Columbia and state of Penna deceased, and whereas, lastly I as the widow of the said Shobel Strawbridge dead, am entitled by the laws of Penna. to claim from the lawful Authorities of said County of Columbia, administration of his estate, etc etc., LOUISA STRAWBRIDGE'

HON. JOSEPH ALFRED STROWBRIDGE³, son of PHILIP MAUS (4), was b. Dec. 1, 1835. When about one year old his parents rem. to Ohio, and in 1852 to Portland, Ore., where he has since res. He m. at Oxford, O., July 4, 1864, MARY H., eldest dau. of Dr. H. A. and Eliza (Fisher) BODMAN,*

* Dr. H. A. Bodman was b. at Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 8, 1813; d. at Portland, Ore., Sept. 29, 1872. He was descended from an old German family, who originally spelled their surname Bodmann. Doctor Bodman was the last of his family. His grandfather served all through the Revolutionary war, and his father in the war of 1812. Doctor Bodman was a surgeon in the navy during the late Civil war. He went in response to an especial call from President Lincoln for experienced surgeons. Was with Admiral Porter on the Mississippi. In 1865 rem. with his family to Oregon. When a young man he left his home in Massachusetts, and went to Ohio; there he studied medicine, graduating at the medical college at Cincinnati. He m. and settled at Cincinnati, but rem. to Oxford on account of the superior educational advantages it possessed for his children. Mrs. Bodman was b. in Paris, Ky., Jan. 18, 1820, of Scotch parents, who came from Glasgow about one year before her birth. She d. at Portland, Jan. 14, 1876.

a lady of rare education, culture, and social abilities. Mr. Strowbridge has given generous aid towards defraying the expense of collecting material for the history of his branch of the Strowbridge family, and Mrs. Strowbridge has also assisted greatly by furnishing the most of the records of this branch.

“Mr. Strowbridge, universally known as one of the leading business men and philanthropists of Portland, Ore., was born in 1835, in Montour co., Pa. With his parents he early made a home in Ohio, receiving the substantial home training of very careful Christian parents, and gained thereby the habits of thrift, industry, and enterprise which have made him uninterruptedly successful through life. He was also afforded excellent advantages at school, and prepared himself to enter the Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, O., with a view of studying law. When but a lad of fourteen he was promised by an eccentric old gentleman, a Mr. Oldham, a school to teach if he could obtain a certificate from the board of examiners. Encouraged by this incentive he at once set to work to make the attempt, and appearing with some fifty or sixty other applicants before the board at Marion, passed the examination with flying colors, and was complimented by the examiner, Mr. John J. Williams, who was enough impressed with his youthfulness to address him, “My boy.” Mr. Oldham was as good as his word, and young Strowbridge finished his term with success and pleasure, although many of his pupils were older and larger than himself.

“He deemed it a considerable sacrifice to forego his plan of study, and come to Oregon. The journey was undertaken in October, 1851, and was performed that autumn across the several States with the comparatively easy and expeditious conveyance of horse teams to St. Joseph, Mo. There the winter was spent in taking care of the stock and giving attention to matters pertaining to the comfort of the family, while the young man secured a school by the employment of a Mr. Robinson, and, gathering a considerable number of pupils, taught a very pleasant term.

“The rest of the journey was performed in the season 1852. That was the year of the great immigration, when cholera raged among the trains and tents, and dotted the wayside with graves. Mr. Strowbridge’s family was invaded by the pestilence, and one of the children, a little boy, fell a victim to the scourge. By this event the father was very much dispirited, and feeling anxious and apprehensive for the safety of his family, and determined to do all in his power to get them to Oregon alive, he took upon himself great burdens and cares, and moreover contracted mountain or typhoid fever. He took sick at The Dalles, and died soon after reaching Portland. By this severe blow J. A. Strowbridge, still but a youth, was greatly distressed, and thought that life henceforth would be insupportable, or even impossible, in the absence of this greatly beloved parent. He was himself sick, and now felt the responsibility of his mother's family. In his great trouble, however, he found the people of Portland, — then but a little hamlet in the deep woods, — big-hearted and kind, and ready to make his life as cheerful as possible. Following close upon the bereavement of the family by the death of the father, came the loss of the entire band of stock, worth many thousand dollars, which had been brought across the plains with the greatest care and without loss. Their destruction was brought about by the fall, near the middle of December, 1852, of about two feet of snow, which lay on the ground many weeks, making grazing impossible, while feed was not to be had.

“Thus, upon the opening of the season 1853, Mr. Strowbridge found himself in a new country, practically without means, and with no resources except such as were in his own courageous heart, active brain, and willing hands. Setting to work bravely, and taking any employment that was offered, he soon had some means ahead, and forming a business connection, in a small way, with San Francisco, greatly improved his outlook. In 1853 he bought a few boxes of Oregon green apples, which were among the first, if not the very first, placed in the San Francisco market. Going into the business more extensively, he made a tour among the farmers, and encouraged them to set out apple orchards, offering as an inducement that he would take all that they could raise at from fifteen to thirty cents a pound, — from five to twelve dollars a box. By this time he became one of the first to inaugurate the shipping of fresh fruit, a business which had increased to such an extent by 1860 that the total shipments of apples from Oregon amounted to over one hundred thousand boxes. The first results of his labors were, however, swept away by the failure of Adams & Co., bankers and expressmen, at San Francisco; for upon going to that city at the request of his commission merchants, he put into Adams & Co.'s bank, for safe keeping, his entire avails, and but a few days after learned, in common with many others, that the establishment had totally failed. He improved his remaining time at the city, however, by examining the produce market, both as to stock on hand, and that incoming, as indicated by the shipping lists from New York. Returning to Oregon, he entered boldly, almost without money, into the produce and commission business in Portland and surrounding country. By very careful calculations, and exact methods, and the timely tender by a friend of a small sum of money, which he was soon able to return, he made rapid financial headway, and has never been obliged to seek aid outside of his own resources. Never since his first establishment has he worked for a salary, but has been controller and operator of large kinds of business, and one of those men that seek employees instead of employment. Continuing his trade in produce, he transferred his interests, in 1859, to the boot and shoe trade, forming a partnership with Mr. C. M. Wiberg. In 1870 the firm closed out, and Mr. Strowbridge made a specialty of leather and shoe findings.

"In the great fire of 1873 he was burned out and lost heavily, but was among the first to rebuild, and to get a stock again on the market. He has followed this business with great fidelity up to the present time, becoming known for his integrity and fair dealing. He has been successful, reaping the honest fruits of his application, sagacity, and good investments. He has the satisfaction of liquidating all honest debts the moment they are due, of paying a hundred cents on the dollar, and of knowing that no one ever lost a farthing through him. This is a clean and handsome record, of which any man may be proud. He is one of our men of wealth, who holds nothing but what legitimately belongs to him. He has been extensively engaged in real estate operations in the city, and has pursued the liberal policy of improving his property, and thus furnishing accommodations for business and stimulating the growth of the city. In addition to this record in exact affairs, he has been closely identified with public measures to develop the city and state. Inclined to be conservative, believing rather in steady growth than in ephemeral excitement, and quiet and careful, he has, nevertheless, done more than could be told within these pages to make Portland a true emporium.

"In the interest of public good and philanthropy he has a wide influence, being a friend of the public schools and of the churches, contributing to almost every religious organization in the city.

"He was one of the first members of the Portland volunteer fire department, organized about 1853, and is now an exempt and honorary member. He has been a member of the Portland Board of Trade since its first organization. He was one of the incorporators of Lone Fir cemetery.

"He is a member of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society; a director in the Pacific Fire Insurance Co.; a member of the board of trustees of the First Congregational church, and was one of the first members of the Portland Library, and has a perpetual membership therein.

"Mr. Strowbridge has steadily refused all political offices, except that in June, 1888, he suffered his name to be used in nomination as representative from Multnomah co.; and his popularity was attested by the largest majority on the whole legislative ticket, as he received 6,052 votes out of 9,384 cast.

"They have a delightful home, with all the surroundings of comfort, refinement, and wealth."—(From the "North-west History of Oregon and Washington").

- i. FRANCES DORA¹ (or LORA), b. Aug. 1, 1873; d. Aug. 1, 1891.

Notes from a letter of Mr. Homer Strawbridge Mouser of Huron, So. Dakota.

"Justus Strawbridge (the writer's grandfather), as I understand it, came of the English colonists who, under Cromwell, settled in the north of Ireland."

"Ann Closen or Closon, was born in 1716, in Philadelphia, as I understand it. She married a Mr. Heap, and became the mother of Frances Heap, who married a Meus, and was the mother of Susanna Mous who married Justus Strawbridge, also of Joseph, Charles, Lewis, and Elizabeth or "Betsey." The Mous were Dutch, from Holland, who were said to have been very wealthy, coming to America in their own ship, and bringing with them great stores of wines, etc., and settling in Philadelphia."

"A booklet which belonged to Ann Closen is owned by a member of the Mouser family, also her Sampler, of which the closing words are 'I shall conclude and make an end, the best I do I hope to mend, Ann Closen' (or Closon). Her Sampler finished in the tenth year of her age, 1726."

SECTION V.

“ROBERT STRAWBRIDGE was b. at Drummer's Nave, near Carrick-on-Shannon, Co. of Leitrim, Ire. He came to the United States some time between 1760 and 1765, settling on Sam's Creek, Frederick co., Md. He was a Methodist local preacher, having preached in Ireland, although it is uncertain whether he had ever been regularly licensed. He was an earnest Christian, and finding no religious services in the section where he settled, he commenced preaching in his own house, and subsequently a small log chapel was erected about a mile from his dwelling. This building, however, though sometimes spoken of as the first Methodist church in Maryland, was never deeded to the church and was never finished.

“He preached in several places in Maryland, especially in Harford and Frederick counties. In 1769 he was joined in his labors by others, and under their joint efforts several societies were organized. Richard Owings, the first native American preacher, was converted under his ministry.

“When the Revolutionary war broke out most of the ministers who had come over from England retired, and the societies were left without care or pastoral supervision. He took charge of the society at Sam's Creek and of Bush Forest in Harford co., and continued to be their preacher for about five years.

“It was in 1773 that his name first appears on the Conference minutes as one of the preachers assisting Mr. (afterwards Bishop) Asbury, on the Baltimore circuit. In 1776 he rem. his family to a farm not far from Baltimore, the use of which was presented to him during his life by Captain Ridgely, its owner. He d. in the summer of 1781, and was buried on the farm of Mr. Wheeler, near Baltimore. There is no specimen of his handwriting now extant. In the deed of property to his son, and in the letters of administration, the name is written ‘Strowbridge,’ although it appears as ‘Strawbridge’ in the Conference minutes.”—(Condensed from “McClintock & Strong's Cyclopedia,” and “The Cyclopedia of Methodism,” by Bishop Simpson.

In Book No. 12, folio 358 (of decedents' estates, Baltimore, Md., records), there is an inventory of the estate of ROBERT STROWBRIDGE, footing up £107, 12, 6. Among the items which are set forth in great detail are "Sundry books of Sundry Kinds," and "1 tea cittle." ELIZABETH STROWBRIDGE was appointed administratrix, with John Long and Thomas Dew as bondsmen. Right here the record stops and no sale or other proceedings are mentioned. The administration was granted May 22, 1782.

In Land Record (Baltimore) Liber, W. G, No. 52, folio 238, is a lease from George Brown, physician, to THEOPHILUS STROWBRIDGE, of a lot on the north-east side of Green street, on the west side of Jones' Falls in Baltimore City. The yearly ground rent is $30, gold, and the term of the lease 99 years, dated May 1, 1794.

In Liber, W. G, No. 52, folio 244, there is an assignment of the foregoing lease, by THEOPHILUS STROWBRIDGE, merchant, to GEORGE STROWBRIDGE; consideration, £175; date, June 3, 1797.

In Admn. Accts. (Baltimore), No. 4, folio 221, is mentioned the granting of letters of administration on the estates of THEOPHILUS STROWBRIDGE and ABEGAL STROWBRIDGE, both on the same day, viz: Jan. 27, 1808, to JESSE STROWBRIDGE, with GEORGE STROWBRIDGE and Thomas Crawford as bondsmen. No inventory returned as to Theophilus. Abegal's amounted to $138.35. Whether Theophilus Strowbridge, and George and Abegal Strowbridge were of the family of Rev. Robert, can not be determined, but presumably they were.

"A beautiful memorial church has been erected to his memory in Baltimore, and an interesting tablet placed in the church by the Local Preachers' Association, to his memory."—(Letter of Rev. John F. Goucher of Baltimore, who, as pastor, superintended the erection of the church, to the author.)

SECTION VI.

John Strawbridge of Philadelphia, Pa.

“In 1785 and later JOHN and JAMES STRAWBRIDGE purchased wild lands in this vicinity (Osceola, Tioga co., Pa.).

“From recitals in deeds recorded in this county it appears that JOHN STRAWBRIDGE of Philadelphia d. in 1793, leaving five children, viz.: JAMES, JOHN JR., GEORGE, JANE, and another whose name I do not have. It also appears that James d. previous to 1806, unm., without issue and intestate, and that Jane m. JONATHAN D. LEDYARD. George purchased the lands and disposed of them to settlers in part, etc. . . .

“They purchased of the Commonwealth the soil upon which this village (Osceola) is built. None of them, so far as I know, ever located here. I believe it is asserted that James made a clearing in the forest six miles from here since 1785-90, and res. for a time on good terms with the Indians.”—(From a letter of Charles Tubbs of Osceola, Pa., Apr. 4, 1891.)

SECTION VII.

York County (Pennsylvania) Branch.

JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE¹ was, according to the statement of his granddaughter, the late Mrs. Martha (Strawbridge) Brown, the name of the ancestor of this branch of the Strawbridge Family. No positive evidence as to his place of residence has been obtained, but it is believed by many of his descendants that he came direct from England to America, although some claim that he was from the north of Ireland. One branch of his descendants has the tradition that he was an Englishman of rank, who was disinherited by his family on account of marrying a Scotch girl of inferior position. Where he lived after coming to America, who his wife was, or when they died, it is not possible to ascertain.

THEIR CHILDREN WERE

- 2* i. JOSEPH², b. June 24, 1773; m. ELIZABETH BOND and NANCY (Bankhead) NICHOLS. (Some lists give Joseph as the fourth child, but this could hardly have been the case, if, as some descendants think, his father was born about 1750.)

JOSEPH STRAWBRIDGE², son of JOSEPH (1), was b. June 24, 1773, where has not been ascertained. The oldest deed recorded in York co., Pa., in the Strawbridge name, is a deed of 146 acres and 68 perches in Fawn township, York co., Pa., from Benjamin Payne and Charlotte, his wife, to Joseph Strawbridge, and is dated Sept. 12, 1807 (book 2, v. p. 415). The tract of land is described as adjoining lands of Edward Manifold, Joseph Kennard, Peter Knotz, and James Duncan. The deed mentions that this land was a patent enrolled in the Rolls Office. Mr. Strawbridge m. (1) in York co., Pa., May 26, 1801, ELIZABETH BOND, who was b. Nov. 10, 1780; d. Aug. 10, 1820; m. (2) Feb. 2, 1827, MRS. NANCY (Bankhead) NICHOLS,* b. Oct. 6, 1791; d. May 22, 1852; res. at Hopewell, Pa.; the family rem. about 1832 to Richmond, Wayne co., Ind. Mr. Strawbridge d. there July 29, 1851. He and his first wife were members of the Fawn Grove (York co., Pa.) Society of Friends, and after rem. to Indiana he was connected with the Yearly Meeting at Richmond.

JOHN STRAWBRIDGE², son of JOSEPH (1), m. ———. He had land in York co., recorded in the office of Registrar of Deeds of that county as follows:

"Oct. 25, 1826, a lot of land in Fawn township, containing 80 acres, alleged and described as adjoining lands of Jacob Hedrick, James Duncan (formerly Kennard), and others. It was a part of a tract called 'Payne's Woods,' and from names of adjoining land owners would seem to have adjoined that of Joseph Strawbridge, who purchased in 1807. Of these two tracts Mr. Jos. R. Strawbridge of York, Pa., says, 'I am satisfied that they made up together the very land owned by my grandfather, John Strawbridge (who heads this paragraph), at the time of his death, and which became subsequently the property of my father's brother Joseph.'"

Miscellaneous.

"BENIAMINE STRAWBRIDGE and HANAH acly were joyned in marriage July ye 9th, 1705." (East Haddam, Conn., Records.)

"Farmer's M. S. notes that two of the name (Trowbridge), had been graduates at Harvard, two at Yale, but very curious is the fact that records of town and ch at Haddam, where one branch of the surname spread, give it Strawbridge." (Savage's Gen. Dict.)

[In answer to inquiries, the present (1891) town clerk of East Haddam reports that the above item is all that the records contain about persons named Strawbridge.—M. S. P. G.]

"WM. STRAWBRIDGE, Baptist minister, b. 1757, d. at Lower Providence, Pa., aged 73." (Allen's Am. Biog. Dict.)

"Alexr. McLean and JEAN STRAWBRIDGE m. Sept. 3, 1763." (Marriage Records, St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, Pa.) -
